Carter to Stress Fuel Frugality by Fireside

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, keeping a promise "to communicate with the folks" was expected to stress the need for sacrifices to save energy in his first televised "fireside chat" from the White House tonight.

The broadcast, at 10 p.m. EST, will be delivered beside a crackling wood fire in the fireplace of the library in the mansion's ground floor and is one of a series Carter plans over the next three months.

Asked why Carter was going on the air so early in the presidency, an aide said, "He made a commitment to communicate with the folks. This an opportunity for him to lay out, in a relaxed way, his hopes and aspirations."

Carter plans to sit in a red armchair and will use a teleprompter.

India's Ram Resigns, Will Oppose Indira

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Jagjivan Ram, a political powerhouse who has served as a cabinet minister for 27 of the last 30 years, broke with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today and said he will fight her in the March elections.

Ram and five others, including two former state chief ministers ousted in the past 16 months by Mrs. Gandhi, resigned from her ruling Congress party and formed a new group called "Congress for Democracy." Ram also resigned as India's food and agriculture minister.

Claudine Cancels Conviction Appeal

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Singer Claudine Longet, fearful of enduring another trial, decided against appealing her negligent homicide conviction and 30-day jail sentence for the shooting death of her lover, a spokesman for her defense attorneys said.

"Miss Longet has decided not to appeal the conviction," the spokesman said late Tuesday. "She doesn't want to go through the experience of another trial."

Attorney Ron Austin said earlier that Miss Longet was torn between the desire to prove her innocence in the death of pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich and the fear of enduring another trial.

Consumer Groups Want Dixon Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer groups are joining the rising clamor for the resignation of Federal Trade Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon for calling Ralph Nader a "dirty Arab," and a congressman wants Dixon impeached.

But Nader said he wasn't surprised, and thinks the incident is just one more reason why Dixon should resign.

Thermsing Dixon's indirect apology Tuesday unacceptable, Nader said, "What's not been generally recognized here is, what was he doing addressing a trade group whose members are regulated by his commission — and doing it behind closed doors?"

"That's who he thinks his constituency is. He isn't just an intemperate outburst. He called me an S.O.B. in Las Vegas before some giant trade group four months ago but no one caught him that time."

Justice Dept. Says Ray Acted Alone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has concluded after months of investigation that James Earl Ray acted alone in assassinating Dr. Martin Luther King, UPI learned today.

Reliable sources said the conclusion is contained in a 148-page report prepared by Michael Shaheen, director of the department's Office of Professional Responsibility, of the direction of former Attorney General Edward Levi.

Punxsutawney Phil

Groundhog Day Is All A Hoax

No Virginia, Ohio, There Isn't...

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (UPI) — In a winter as bad as this, with the weatherman predicting more of the same, it may be understandable if some winter-weary Americans look to the groundhog Punxsutawney Phil for some hope.

But no, Virginia — and Ohio and New York and Michigan and Illinois and the rest of you in the freeze belt — there is no meteorologically omniscient critter living in a burrow on Gobbler's Knob in Punxsutawney, a southwestern Pennsylvania community.

It's all a hoax, albeit a goodnatured one, to give the town's 10,000 residents an excuse to shuck the winter doldrums once a year and have a good time — with community leaders in formal morning clothes and top hats to lend an atmosphere of pomp and circumstance to the silliness.

The festivities have been an annual event since 1887, when a group of "old timers" who got together on Gobbler's Knob to play poker, drink beer and have a good time formed the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club.

"Everyone wanted to get in on the action," said Sam Light, president-emeritus of the club. "The club has grown and grown to where there's more than 1,000 members today and everyone has had a marvelous time."

The official groundhog ceremony is followed by a huge breakfast at the Punxsutawney Country Club; the crowning of a Groundhog King and Queen by the local high school; and the awarding of the Man and Woman of the Year awards at a banquet that night.

The current Phil — no one is sure how many there have been — was imported from the Pittsburgh Zoo three years ago. He is kept with his mate, Phyllis, in a glass-enclosed home at the local civic center most of the time.

Six Aldermen Say No

Budget Passes By One Vote

By ROB BORSELLINO
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — By a narrow seven to six margin, the closest budget vote in memory, according to one long time City Hall observer, Kingston's Common Council last night adopted Mayor Francis R. Koenig's $8.9 million spending plan for 1977.

Aldermen Donald Quick, D-Ward 6 and Phillip DeCicco, D-Ward 9, crossed party lines and joined the four Republican aldermen in opposing the budget.

Quick said he put a lot of time into studying the package and made several suggestions for revision, none of which were carried out.

The alderman said that doing away with part time help could save the city over $65,000. He also took issue with the fact that such things as contractual and miscellaneous expenses are not itemized.

"If we could have seen these items, we could have cut back quite a bit," said Quick, noting that he didn't get certain information he requested until 10 p.m. Monday night, "when it was obviously too late."

DeCicco cast his opposing vote saying that the budget should be prepared by Dec. 1, which would give the Council more time to consider it. At present the aldermen don't get a copy of the budget until the beginning of January.

DeCicco also called for a better breakdown of each department's expenses, a justification of all overtime paid to city employees, more control over city employees to make them

McMickle Is Hung In Effigy

KINGSTON — Unemployed local construction workers packed the Common Council chamber at City Hall last night to voice their support of the north-south arterial project and hang the president of WHITA in effigy.

Led by Bradley Wilson, organizer of the Out of Work Taxpayers Association of Ulster County, the workers carried signs denouncing the We've Had It Taxpayers Association and WHITA President Mary McMickle. One worker carried a stuffed doll with

Power Chief Says Shutdowns Could Last to Summer

Gas Crisis May Get Much Worse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Power Commissioner John Holloman believes the worst of the natural gas crisis may lie ahead and, even if not, the emergency will last all winter and factories may still be shut by summer.

America is keeping gas-heated homes in entire cities warm by burning supplies from storage fields that are rapidly running low, Holloman said.

"The crunch could be yet to come," he told reporters Tuesday. "We're maintaining conditions in the current crisis by drawing heavily out of storage."

Meanwhile, the energy-weather crisis continued to grip the nation, with the following effects:

- Energy-and-weather-related layoffs climbed past 2.5 million — including an estimated 1.5 million in hard-hit Ohio.

- Bitter cold and blizzards claimed 70 lives in seven states since last Thursday night.

- The House passed President Carter's emergency legislation to get natural gas into homes — at higher prices. The Senate has approved similar legislation and the proposal is expected to reach Carter for signing by tonight.

- A new blizzard swept over the upper Great Lakes, crippling western New York again. Buffalo got its second blizzard in four days and snowdrifts piled 25 feet high in the city, prompting a state of emergency.

- Indiana Gov. Otis Bowen sought a federal disaster declaration for his hard-hit state. North Carolina became the 13th state to declare a state of emergency.

- Officials in California, spared the freezing cold, asked residents to dial down heat and conserve fuel to help out the rest of the nation.

Those in areas not hard hit by snow may find it impossible to imagine the plight of western and northwestern New York. The figures boggle the mind.

A post mortem on the snowfall in the Watertown area, including Jefferson and Lewis Counties, shows that the hamlet of Hooker, some 25 miles southwest of Watertown, has received 64.2 inches of snow in the past week, and has gotten 320.8 inches this season, or more than 26 1/2 feet of snow this winter, more than enough to cover a two-story home.

Blue Jay Still Waits For Walking Papers

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK — Charlotte Strassberg knows there are worse problems in the world. She reads the papers. But it's hard for her to concentrate on the big woes when she has a small one of her own at the same time.

The thing is that of Mrs. Strassberg, after weeks of patient waiting, hasn't received state and federal licenses needed, if she is to continue caring for Chichi, her pet bluejay.

Ordered to obtain a federal permit for the bird when she applied for state license renewal, she returned state form and fee, and asked for federal papers. That was weeks ago and she's heard nothing since.

Meanwhile, she and her ailing husband watch the mail daily for the elusive papers. And, over in Australia, where their son teaches, their young grandchildren wait to learn Chichi's fate. The bird, unable to fly with disabled wings, is kept in a cage.

"The state gave me a license with no flim flaming for two years in a row," said Mrs. Strassberg. "I just can't under-

Unsolved Razor Murder Case Reopened by Caruso Slaying

ELLENVILLE — The cracking of the Caruso murder case in Ellenville last week has opened the door wide for further State Police BCI investigation into the grisly death of another southern Ulster County teenage girl two years ago.

A good percentage of the people interviewed in the course of the BCI investigation into the Jan. 23 beating death of 19-year-old Deborah Sue Caruso in Ellenville, were questioned previously in connection with the murder of her close friend, Diane Schoonmaker of Nanapanoch. Both girls lived in Swan Trailer Park.

Ellenville State Police arrested Michael Weiss, 19, of 17 Canal St., Ellenville last week and charged him with manslaughter in the Caruso's girl's death following a drunken quarrel over money to buy drugs.

But BCI is still unable to come up with an arrest for the Schoonmaker murder in which the 16-year-old's throat had been cut from ear to ear, "probably with a razor," police theorized. Her body, which was stuffed in a drum, was found in the Ellenville Village dump. She had also been stabbed numerous times.

Sr. Inv. Donald Trotter, who is heading the Schoonmaker investigation, asks that anyone who has any information pertinent to the case contact him or the Daily Freeman in Kingston. All information will be kept in the strictest confidence.

Inv. Trotter, who has tracked down many leads in the case in the past 28 months "definitely feels it can be solved."

While the mode of murder was different in the Caruso and Schoonmaker deaths, the Schoonmaker girl's homicide was similar to one repeatedly employed by a Florida fugitive who killed himself after a cross-country spree of murders which claimed at least 20 lives in 1974.

Paul John Knowles, 28, whose trail of murders reached from Connecticut to Nevada, died pass through New Paltz probably within 24 hours of the Schoonmaker girl's death.

But it didn't appear he was in Ellenville, Troop F Commander Capt. Donald Pinto told the Freeman.

Pinto said the BCI investigated Knowles thoroughly but were unable

Snoopy Records a First

ROME (UPI) — Snoopy, the flop-eared beagle from the Charlie Brown cartoon by Charles Schultz, has become the first character to be televised in color in Italy.

Snoopy won the distinction when the national television network began showing color programs for the first time. Italy is the last European Common Market country to begin color transmissions after years of dispute as to whether the French Secam or West German Pal system should be used. The Pal system won.

Many Italians already have color sets on which they have been watching color programs from bordering states such as Switzerland, France and Yugoslavia.

Oh, the 'Misery' of It All

Robert E. Sullivan

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — All right, America, just because you're freezing your thermometers off, don't expect any sympathy from me.

I've got my own problems.

For openers, it's been between 95 and 99 degrees every day for the past few weeks now and the only way to cool off is to spend a few hours every day at Copacabana or Ipanema beaches. And even then you have to jump into the surf every half hour or so to cool down.

But that's not all.

Just this morning my underground bar sources reported that there was soon to be a beer shortage. So I spent all morning dispatching grocery boys and delivery clerks all over town to bring back and chill bottles of the local brew.

And when I got to the air conditioned office today and settled down for some work, what should happen to me? I get a message from UPI headquarters in New York:

"Go to the beach and take pictures of girls in bikinis. It will make good contrast with the cold weather up here."

So off I go. Drop everything and lug a pair of heavy cameras down to Ipanema beach.

And so it went all afternoon: find the prettiest girls, take their pictures, go for a swim, find the prettiest girls, etc., etc.

And then there were all those questions to answer. "Yes, its true. I am a foreign correspondent."

"Yes, I work for the world's largest news agency."

"Could I make you one small copy? Well I suppose so.... Bring it by your house tonight? Well, I guess so...."

Like that. All afternoon. And it looks as if that is not going to be the end of it. There's a rumor that some girls are going topless at Copacabana beach. I guess New York will send me down there.

That's enough to drive a guy to transfer to Buffalo.

Problems Seen In Tapping Of Our Water

FAERBER: Doubts Moose, Black Bear

NEW PALTZ — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers may know how to move huge amounts of drinking water from the Mid-Hudson River to metropolitan New York, but its plans so far haven't said enough about how Mid-Hudson communities themselves would be affected.

That was one of the chief complaints lodged with federal engineers and the state Department of Environmental Conservation by some 150 area officials and residents Tuesday at an informational meeting on a plan to tap the Mid-Hudson River for up to 950 million gallons a day of metropolitan drinking water.

Ulster County Planning Director Herbert M. Hekler said the corps' draft environmental impact statement on its proposed high-flow river skimming project so far shows only "marginal" benefits for the source area, while side effects could be "dire and horrendous."

Federal and state officials agreed that the river project will require changes in political and institutional areas outside the engineers' control — notably, in the 1905 Water Supply Act which still dominates upstate-downstate water relations.

"We're not opposing this per se," Hekler said, "but we have certain critical interests that have to be addressed."

Ulster County itself may want to tap the river in the early 21st Century to meet an estimated water demand of 50 million gallons per day, about twice the county's present use, Hekler said.

He and others also questioned the effect of high-capacity skimming, although intermittent, on the constant demand for water by several nuclear power plants also planned for the Mid-Hudson area.

William W. Horne, DEC study manager, said present policy on tapping the river seems to be first-come, first-served — a policy which Thomas H. Miner, an Ulster County Planning Board member, called "insane."

Horne agreed: "There is a necessity in the next three years for the state and local governments to come to some kind of institutional answers."

Michael Lembo Jr., a Mod-

Lebo said he and the North-east Fruit Council are "strongly opposed" to the current west-shore plan.

That plan also calls for a 10-acre water intake facility in Esopus, right next to another orchard owned by John B. Patrick.

The east-shore plan, not as strongly favored by the corps, would put both the intake and treatment facilities in Rhinebeck on a plateau between the river and Snyder's Swamp, just south of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge.

Either system would require a 60-mile tunnel to carry treated water to Kensico Reservoir in Westchester County for distribution to metropolitan New York, Long Island, and possibly New Jersey.

Funds for the $3.6 billion project could be borrowed under the 1958 Federal Water Act, Horne said, and be repaid over 50 years by those who benefited from the system. Cost sharing would have to be defined under the institutional changes he foresaw as necessary, Horne said.

Hekler said the 1905 law must be redrawn to correct inequities in the amounts of water allowed source-area communities under the present system of New York City control over the Catskill and Delaware reservoir supplies.

Even if Ulster County couldn't tap directly into deep underground tunnels from the river skimmer, Hekler said the city might trade off more supplies from the mountain reservoirs, on which metropolitan demand presumably would be reduced by the average 300 to 400 mgd available from the skimmer.

The Ulster County Planning Board is expected to pass a resolution authorizing H. Clark Bell, the county's representative on Gov. Hugh L. Carey's water task force, to agree to further study of the corps plan, provided the county's "critical interests" and the 1905 law's "inequities" are taken into account.

Bell, a former 101st District assemblyman who was vice chairman of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's temporary commission on water supplies, questioned corps engineers about other federal plans for regional water supplies, should the river skimmer be unacceptable.

Harold Butler, chief of special studies for the corps' listing of moose and black bear among county wildlife.

"We don't even have them at Forsyth Park (in Kingston)," Faerber said.

Edward C. Schueler, Dutchess County executive, thought the cost of the corps plan — about $2,300 per mgd of water, Hekler estimated — was "outrageous."

He thought local communities could do the job "a helluva lot cheaper."

C. David Lookes, president of Mid-Hudson Pattern, joined the call for more attention to the plan's effect on local communities and other water supply demands.

"We're simply not going to allow these things to be financed," Lookes said.

Horne said the DEC will hold a public hearing on the plan sometime in mid- or late March, probably in New York City.

LEMO: To Lose Orchard and Lake?

Pattern Favors Easing Of Reservoir Rec Curbs

POUGHKEEPSIE — Mid-Hudson Pattern, a private planning and development group, again has called for loosening the restrictions on recreational use of New York City's water supplies in its Catskill and Delaware reservoir systems.

While the appeal isn't new, MHP Senior Vice President Arthur E. Weintraub said the issue has become a "timely" one because of two recent developments — a plan to tap the Mid-Hudson River for more New York City water, and new state regulations on how the city may release water from its current upstate reservoir systems.

"These developments open up very broadly the issue of regional water supplies ... If

New York City is going to draw on the Mid-Hudson Valley for its water supply, perhaps there should be some tradeoffs with respect to such things as recreation," Weintraub said.

New York City's six-reservoir system, covering 25,000 water acres and another 35,000 acres of surrounding watershed land, have an "enormous" economic potential for the five Mid-Hudson Valley counties in which they are located, Weintraub said.

Yet because of metropolitan restrictions dating back to a 1905 law under which New York City took control of the upstate reservoirs, "their potential has yet to be realized," he said.

The five counties in the supply area — Ulster, Greene, Delaware, Schoharie and Sullivan — come within only 72 per cent of all upstate counties in per capita income, and not one equals the state average in per capita income, Weintraub said.

"Viewed in these terms, the unusually restrictive exercise of extra-territorial powers by the City of New York is having a dampening effect on the Catskill region's economy and is causing it to pay a rather high price in these troubled times," said Weintraub's latest report, delivered last month to the Catskill Forum in Margaretville.

Counter arguments that opening the reservoirs to greater recreational use would create a Coney Island are "super distortions" aimed at arousing fear in the local populace, the report said.

The fact that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers currently has a plan to tap the Mid-Hudson River for near a billion gallons of New York City drinking water per day should provide "ample" proof that safe water and recreation can coexist, Weintraub said.

"Experience elsewhere shows rather conclusively that recreational uses of reservoirs do not present any serious pollution problems," he said.

New state regulations on New York City's upstate reservoir water releases, scheduled for a public hearing Thursday in Kingston before the state Department of Environmental Conservation, make provisions for protection of recreational activities in those water supplies.

Weintraub called the new DEC regulations a "major breakthrough" in thinking: "We're talking now about regional water supplies instead of New York City water supplies."

Current regulations governing recreational use of reservoirs allow only rowboats for fishing purposes. Prohibited are sailing, canoeing, swimming, hiking, bicycling, picnicking, ice skating and primitive camping.

These uses and development of boat launching sites would be encouraged by Mid-Hudson Pattern, an 11-year-old private corporation, that seeks "a balanced approach" between the environment and the economy, Weintraub said.

MHP is supported chiefly by contributions from its 450 members, including industrial and banking institutions.

Weintraub said new public policy on the reservoirs must be developed through alliances between the local populace and "responsible parties" within the metropolitan area.

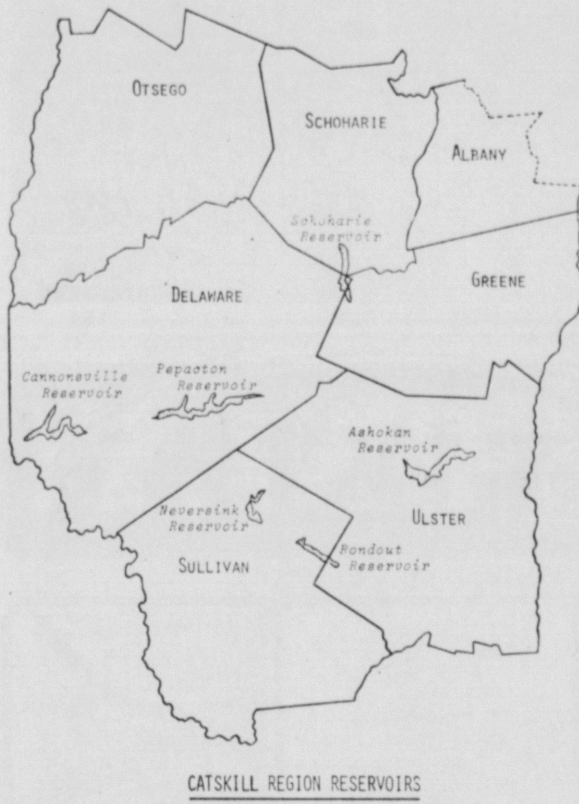

As an example, he said Mid-Hudson Pattern, headquartered in Poughkeepsie, is now working with the Regional Planning Association, another private planning and development group based in New York City.

HEKLER: 'Critical' Issues For County

ena farmer, had a more immediate problem: If the tapping system is built on the west shore of the Hudson, one of the alternatives shown in the corps' latest 300-page report, he would lose 130 acres of orchards and a six-acre man-made pond to an enormous water treatment plant.

WHITA Sees Arterial Plan a Waste

KINGSTON — The president of WHITA, a taxpayer group opposing construction of Kingston's downtown arterial bypass, said today the state will waste "a bundle" on its present plan for removing excavation material from the work site.

The state Department of Transportation will waste $250,000 to $300,000 by trucking excavated material from the proposed Rondout Creek bridge site to disposal areas five and ten round-trip miles away, apparently ignoring a much closer disposal site, Mary E. McMickle said.

Using the unnamed disposal site, material could be hauled on an earthmover 20 times larger than a standard road truck, saving both mileage and equipment costs, Mrs. McMickle's study concluded. The state's current disposal areas are off Rt. 9W and Rt. 209 near Rt. 28. WHITA's site would be only 1,000 yards from the work site, she said.

"It's bad enough that DOT is going to waste $35 to $40 million of the taxpayer's money on the proposed north-south arterial," she said. "But must they add insult to injury by possibly wasting an additional $250,000 to $300,000 ... should the project begin?"

Counsel Says Zoning Proposal 'Stinks'

Woodstock Acts on Issues

WOODSTOCK — Richard Anthony, special town counsel, thinks the planning board's Site Plan Review Proposal "stinks." That's the word he used to describe the uniquely Woodstock version of new zoning rules to place added restrictions on commercial buildings.

But the planning board, unswayed by his opinion, instructed Anthony to prepare enabling legislation for the town board to hold a final public hearing on the proposal. "Just come up with a broad overview of the ordinance," board chairman Paul Van Wagenen told Anthony. "It is the overriding opinion of this board that this is what we want, whether you like it as a citizen or lawyer."

Added Van Wagenen, "You can advise the town board not to adopt it, but—if you don't want to do it—we'll have to get somebody else who will. We're tired of kicking this around." Anthony agreed to do the job, and the town board will set a hearing date on site plan review at its February meeting. The proposal first surfaced early last year, and planners are now eager to move ahead as rapidly as possible on this and other zoning action. The town board will also call a hearing on C-2 hamlet commercial zoning at its March meeting, to be followed by a hearing on a new trailer ordinance.

It has now been verified that the planning board has recommended to the town board that trailer parks only be permitted in Woodstock, and that no individual trailers be allowed. The board's split 4-3 decision reverses the present trailer law, which regulates individual mobile homes, but is so stringent on parks that none has ever been developed here.

If Anthony agreed to the enabling legislation, he objected to site plan review as "a lawyer's dream of how to create all kinds of business for people like me." As now worded, he said, it contains "no hard and fast standards" for commercial building, and could be "struck down in court because of its nebulous language."

Asked Anthony, "How do I measure objectively what creates a harmonious whole, or enhances or detracts from value and attractiveness?"

Answered board member Malcolm Rose, "You can't." And, for him, that was the vital point. Using a word like "harmonious," he felt, was more applicable to Woodstock than spelling out "exactly" what a person "had to build."

Said Rose, "We're all for site plan review on this board, but we don't want an ordinance we have to enforce against small businessmen who just want to change a bow window."

Planner Mickey Edwards agreed. "We could be very, very specific," he said, "but we think non-specific is the best approach for obtaining much more of what we want to get for Woodstock."

Added board member John Bonilla, "We can't draw up a standard regulating ordinance for this town, with its tree houses, colonial buildings, and geodesic domes. But we should have site plan review, not as protection against normal type of development, but to prevent a big, concrete block furniture store from building next to a local parsonage."

Anthony still felt the ordinance amendment, in its present form, would leave the town and planning boards open to lawsuits. Board members didn't feel that should be a consideration. Bonilla said site plan review court cases could be monitored elsewhere in the state, and Woodstock could make changes as needed.

Said Edwards, "We can fiddle around for five years and still have nothing done, or we can do this now and accomplish much more, even if we lose a court decision along the way."

There were two further clarifications. The enabling legislation Anthony will produce involves an amendment to the ordinance rather than a local law.

Congressional Memo Indicates Strong Opposition

Carter's Arms Negotiator Faces Roadblock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A confidential memorandum circulating among conservative members of Congress indicates strong opposition to Paul Warnke, President Carter's reported choice as chief arms control negotiator, even before he is nominated.

"Simply stated," the memorandum says, "it is hard to see how the American side in SALT can be effectively upheld by someone who advocates, as Warnke does, the unilateral abandonment by the United States of every weapons system which is subject to negotiation at SALT (as well as) many other which are not under discussion."

It also said Warnke's record on U.S.-Soviet relations "pose the gravest questions about his suitability to lead ACDA (Arms Control and Disarmament Agency)."

Reached by telephone, Warnke declined comment on reports of his nomination. He said he was reluctant to make any comment because it would be premature until there was an official White House announcement.

Asked his position on SALT, he replied: "There is not enough restraint on either side. Strategically we are in a strong position and I think we will remain that way."

UPI obtained a copy of the memorandum written by members of Congress opposed to his nomination. Congressional sources said it was not yet clear how extensive the opposition is.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said Tuesday he was "concerned about Warnke as a negotiator" but had not communicated this concern to Carter.

But Rep. Sam Stratton, D-N.Y., a ranking member of the House Armed Services Committee, said he had urged Carter to reconsider the nomination.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., was reported by aides to be seeking a public hearing in the Armed Services Committee if Carter does not withdraw the nomination.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has jurisdiction over the Warnke nomination. A supplementary hearing, sources said, would be purely informational, not interfering with the Foreign Relations Committee obligation to recommend confirmation or rejection.

The memo said Warnke "supports unilateral arms reductions to levels far below anything proposed in current arms limitation talks ... doubts the usefulness of such talks, preferring to see unilateral U.S. initiatives ... believes American policy has long been overly fearful of Soviet intentions, and that it is primarily American actions which have spurred the arms race."

Meanwhile, Chairman John Stennis of the Senate Armed Services Committee says officials should take a "mighty hard look" at costly weapons such as the B1 bomber. A senior Pentagon official agrees.

Gen. David C. Jones, the Air Force chief of staff, said a decision on the number of bombers needed can wait until the 1980s. A total of 244 bombers have been planned at a cost of $23 billion.

Jones, along with other military and civilian officials, testified before Congress Tuesday, the day Congress originally set as a deadline for a White House decision on production of the supersonic bomber.

Mondale Has Good News on Allies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale brought personal messages to President Carter and some good news concerning U.S. relations with its traditional allies on his return from the administration's first overseas mission.

Mondale was to report to Carter today on his 10-day, 22,215 mile diplomatic visit to Belgium, Germany, Italy, Great Britain, France and Japan.

Carter greeted Mondale's arrival at nearby Andrews Air Force Base Tuesday after a 15-hour flight from Tokyo. He said Mondale had done "an absolutely superb job" and carried out the diplomatic mission "with the same depth as if I had gone myself."

The vice president was expected to discuss in detail with Carter economic recovery plans in Germany and Japan and the desire of foreign leaders to hold a summit of industrial nations later this year.

Mondale said a consensus was reached on location, timing and agenda, and it is likely to include consultations on East-West relations, the needs of developing countries and the problem of nuclear proliferation.

Mondale said he expects a formal announcement on the summit conference within 10 days. Initial indications were that it would be in London.

Talking with reporters on his return flight, Mondale said his diplomatic mission was a success and America's allies now have a better understanding of the new administration's foreign policy goals.

Geneva Talks Vital for Rhodesia: Young

LONDON (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, on his first diplomatic mission for the Carter administration, said today the deadlocked Geneva talks must be resumed if a peaceful settlement is going to be worked out for Rhodesia.

Young, who is on fact-finding trip to southern Africa, was to meet today with Ivor Richard, Britain's chief negotiator in the talks on the future of the white-ruled African nation.

"I think Ambassador Ivor Richard has done a marvelous job in keeping the talks going," Young told reporters at Heathrow Airport. "It is up to the front-line (black African) presidents to let the situation settle and return to Geneva."

"I am going mostly as a listener to study just how the situation will develop," Young told reporters before leaving Monday night.

The two major problems in southern African facing Young in the coming months are Rhodesia and Namibia (South-West Africa), a disputed territory currently administered by South Africa.

Young said President Carter sees no future for southern Africa "unless there is a rationally negotiated, peaceful and meaningful agreement."

Young discounted reports the United States might take a hard line in Africa, and said black leaders should find "more sympathy and understanding (in Carter) than in any other presidents."

The official purpose of Young's trip to Africa was to attend a Tanzanian political anniversary celebration and visit the World Black and African Festival of Arts and Culture in Lagos, Nigeria.

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young makes his first appearance at the United Nations prior to leaving on his fact-finding trip to Southern Africa.

Two Sought for Armed Robbery

NEW PALTZ — Two slim black males driving an old "boxy-type" dark-colored, two-door sedan, are being sought by Highland State Police in the investigation of the armed holdup of employees of Southside Terrace Apartments in New Paltz Tuesday night.

The wanted men, wearing dark ski masks and dark clothing, entered the apartment office about 6 p.m. and ordered employees, Oscar and Sandra Zimmerman to lay on the floor face down. One or both of the wanted men drew handguns, employees told police.

The suspects then demanded money and took $210 in cash, $50 in coins, two checks made out to the apartments for $190 and $160 and checks bearing the names of Audrey Dyer for $250 and Terry Smith $30. A wallet containing personal papers and credit cards was also taken.

State Police, who are being joined in the investigation by New Paltz Police, said the car in which the two men are believed to have fled had either a white tail light or back up light which may have been broken.

Assault on Broadway

It took more than 60 stitches to sew up Roy Ervine's slashed stomach, elbow and eye, after he was assaulted on Broadway early this morning by a wine bottle wielding teenager, but the 30-year-old Ervine is listed in satisfactory condition at Kingston Hospital.

His alleged assailant, Sidney VanDemark, 19, of 115 Broadway, Kingston, is being held in $10,000 bail in Ulster County Jail, charged with first degree assault and criminal possession of a weapon in the third degree, city detectives said.

Ervine was attacked near the corner of Broadway and Cornell Street after he emerged from a nearby bar. VanDemark, who was carrying a broken wine bottle is alleged to have approached Ervine and cut him deeply from "rib cavity to rib cavity."

Ervine was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance shortly after the 1:30 a.m. assault. He resides at 21 Elizabeth St., Kingston.

Motions Denied

Defense motions to dismiss a first degree manslaughter charge against Michael Weiss of Ellenville, who is accused of killing Deborah Sue Caruso, Jan. 22, were denied in Ellenville Village Court Tuesday night.

It is expected that the case will be presented to the Ulster County Grand Jury within a few weeks.

Property Stolen

The theft of personal property from a moving van in Port Ewen is being investigated by Ulster County Sheriff Department.

About $800 in household property belonging to an IBM employee, Clarence Clark, formerly of Poughkeepsie, who has moved to San Jose, Calif., was taken sometime Sunday from the van parked at J. J. Soechting Co., 151 Broadway, Port Ewen.

The burglary was accomplished by snapping a lock on the van, deputies said.

Another Arrest

George Williams, 26, of Ulster Park, who was arrested Monday by Town of Ulster Police and charged with speeding, driving while his license was suspended, driving while intoxicated and criminal possession of marijuana in the seventh degree, was re-arrested Tuesday and charged with felony drunken driving.

Ulster Police Chief Meyer Levy said Williams, who was previously confined to Ulster County Jail in lieu of $300 bail, was committed again after arraignment on Tuesday's charge and bail was set at $1,800.

The second arrest was made after police discovered that Williams had a prior drunk driving arrest.

He is being held pending appearance before Justice John Gotelli.

DWI Charge

Gerard G. Rigoulot, of Highland, RD, was arrested in Rifton early this morning by Ulster County Sheriff Department, charged him with driving while intoxicated, a felony, driving while his license was suspended and failure to keep right.

Rigoulot refused to take a chemical test deputies said. He was held pending a court appearance.

Pick Pocket Theft

Ulster County Sheriff Department reports the pick pocket theft of $200, a Master Charge credit card and personal papers, from Joseph Mehm of Rifton.

The theft took place in Caldor's Department Store, Town of Ulster.

Youngster Injured

A High Falls youngster was injured Monday night in a two-car crash on Lucas Avenue Extension and the intersection of Edgewood Drive, Hurley.

Tyrone Oates, 14, complained of pain in the head and was taken to Benedictine Hospital.

He was a passenger in a car driven by George E. Oates, 33, of RD 1, High Falls. The second car was operated by Ellen A. Leifer, 27, of Catskill.

Both cars were towed from the scene, sheriff deputies report.

Bike Licenses

The licenses of bicycle owners in the City of Kingston, who registered their bikes in 1975, expired Feb. 1.

Kingston Police Chief Julius Glassman reminds bicycle owners that every bicycle must be registered for two years, at a one dollar fee.

Since the city instituted bicycle registration, police say that the recovery rate of stolen bicycles is 90 per cent and it is to the advantage of the bike owners to comply with the law. Registrations may be obtained at police headquarters in City Hall.

Esopus Crash

Ulster County Sheriff Department responded to a two-car crash on Esopus side of the Port Ewen Bridge Tuesday morning.

No one was injured in the accident which occurred when a car entering Route 9W from Connelly Road, experienced a malfunctioning accelerator and shot across the highway. It was hit by an oncoming vehicle.

to come up with any evidence that he committed the crime.

Inv. Trotter said that although he never really ruled Knowles out, the BCI has poured thousands of man hours into the case and is still pursuing it as determinedly as ever.

When Donald Avery, an Ellenville employee, came upon the body of the Schoonmaker girl on a Friday morning, in the dump he raced to the village sanitation department phone a hundred yards away to call police.

Avery saw an arm protruding from the drum, which lay at the bottom of an embankment of trash, and upon investigation discovered the fully clothed body.

"I saw an arm sticking out of it and thought it was a mannequin," explained Avery who had been operating a bulldozer at the landfill site in the ordinary course of business.

It was only pure accident that the body was discovered, noted Avery, as the trash was due to be covered over with his bulldozer as it is every day.

Diana Schoonmaker had not been living at her parent's home. Frank Schoonmaker identified his daughter's body at the morgue.

Her last known address was the Swan Trailer Park off Route 55, west of Napanoch. She reportedly had lived with friends and police said that she was arrested with a friend in July on marijuana possession charges and at that time listed her address as Sunset Bungalow Colony, Granit Road, Kerhonkson.

At that time police theorized that the girl had not been killed at the trash site, but that the body had been transferred there from another spot. They thought it had probably been taken to the dump in the barrel and rolled down the hill.

At one time police sought an unidentified Puerto Rican man for questioning in the case. Police said he was seen in the company of the dead teenager about 13 hours before her body turned up.

She was reportedly seen with him the night before in Greenfield Park near Ellenville.

Many suspects have been interrogated, lie detector tests have been conducted and still the questioning goes on and on. Investigators are confident they'll break the case yet.

The dark-haired Mrs. McMickle's only comment this morning was that she was "never particularly crazy about red hair."

Presenting the Council with petitions containing over 1,000 signatures from area residents who support the arterial, Wilson said his group has the support of such organizations as the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association and the Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster County and such individuals as Esopus Town Councilman Thomas Johnson.

"The lack of construction in this area is causing us to lose skilled workers to other states," said Wilson, "and we've got to stop paying out welfare to construction workers and let them earn an honest wage."

Watertown itself had 69 inches on the ground early Tuesday, but recorded no additional snowfall during the day.

Army, Air Force and National Guard crews went into the regions today with massive snow blowers to help clear the streets and aid the stranded residents. While travel was banned and many counties were declared disaster areas, crews had managed to clear Interstate Route 81 for one-way traffic both south and north of Jefferson County.

Officials said only cars leaving the county were allowed to travel. More stand why federal approval is suddenly necessary this year."

According to Claudia Van Bumble of the state DEC's Division of Fish and Wildlife, it's just a routine matter.

"We're not going to take the bird away," she said, "but we will not issue a new state license until a federal permit is received. We have her state renewal and money, and we've asked the federal agent of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Albany to send her an application. He said he would."

Mrs. Strassberg said he hasn't. And she insisted that in previous dealings with Ms. Van Bumble, she'd never been told to check with federal authorities. She would have followed through immediately in the past, if that had been the case, she said.

"That was a snafu on our part," said Mrs. Van Bumble. "The federal requirement has been in effect for quite a while, and we should have made her get a federal license previously. We just took a closer look this year and advised her she is supposed to have a federal permit. All I can say is we haven't received it yet. When she gets it from the federal agent and returns it, this will all be cleared up."

Mrs. Strassberg's application, Mrs. Van Bumble said, is only one of more than 1,300 she handles yearly. "It's really amazing how many people keep raccoons and skunks and birds they've obtained from a legal source for pets," she noted.

For Albany and Washington, then, a simple matter of regulatory paperwork. But for some of Mrs. Strassberg's neighbors, a sterling example of how bureaucracy tends to lose perspective.

Said one Woodstocker, "Maybe the rights of disabled bluejays just don't project as well as the problem of saving giant condors and whooping cranes and bald eagles from extinction. Maybe what's needed is a Committee of the Arts and Entertainment to Protect Pet Bluejays."

Biology Textbook Causes Controversy

DALLAS (UPI) — Church leaders want to convince school officials that using a biology text that presents a fundamentalist Biblical view of creation would reduce the Bible to "pseudo-science."

The book causing the controversy, "A Search for Order in Complexity," explains the creation as it was recorded in the Genesis chapter of the Bible and denounces the theory of evolution as "unsubstantiated by scientific facts."

It was not among five biology texts approved by the State Board of Education, but last week Dallas school board members declared the book a mandatory "resource material" for the district's 60 biology classrooms.

Church leaders plan to meet with school officials Thursday in an attempt to have the book removed from classrooms.

Dr. Paul Stauffer, head of the Greater Dallas Community of Churches, said the city's clergy were not upset with the board's intention to "balance the theory of evolution with religious concepts."

"But they are concerned, we all are concerned, about the principal of taking one viewpoint of religion and introducing it as fact. It opens up Pandora's box," he said.

At least one minister has indicated court action might be initiated if the city's clergy fail to convince the school board.

"The Bible is not a book of science — it is a book of faith," said Methodist minister, Dr. Ben Oliphant. "And to teach it as anything else is to reduce it to pseudo-science."

School board president Bill Hunter said he didn't understand all the fuss.

"This book doesn't try to indoctrinate students with religion," said Hunter. "It presents the creation in scientific terms."

Open Our Reservoirs

We heartily agree with planners at Mid-Hudson Pattern who think now's the time to pry the lid off the Catskill region's water reservoirs and open them to wider recreational use.

The vast network of reservoirs located in our region but controlled by New York State and New York City are this area's chief resources. Yet because of the tight restrictions on their use by tourists, we get little benefit from them.

Now that New York City also wants to draw water from the Hudson River here, it's time to raise the issue again.

Experience in other states has shown that careful use of large water reservoirs for recreation doesn't cause serious pollution problems or impair the quality of water set aside to supply cities.

The huge Catskill reservoirs should be getting more use, both to benefit outdoorsmen and to give our region an economic boost as its industrial manufacturing base fades away.

None of the counties in our region matches even the upstate average in per capita income. By almost all measures we live in one of the less prosperous areas of New York State. We should not be denied the use of our most enduring assets — assets that will be more and more vital to us as the long-range effects of New York's fiscal insanity take their toll.

The fear is often expressed that opening the reservoirs to recreation would bring an uncontrollable flood of tourists and unsightly development to the Catskills. This worry is exaggerated. Some unpleasant side effects from economic growth are inevitable, but sensible regional planning can keep them well within acceptable bounds.

Freeman Readers Write

Birth Isn't Always Best

Dear Editor:

The Freeman publishes a great many letters from its readers who are opposed to abortion but I have seen only one in recent weeks that presents the case of the child born to a mother who doesn't want it.

I happen to be one who was fortunate to be given the gift of life by a mother who wanted me and who saw to it that during my infancy and childhood I had care to insure my physical and mental health. Although not many women dispose of their unwanted babies by dropping them in trash cans or on some doorstep, the way callous people dispose of unwanted kittens and puppies, we know this sometimes does happen to infants also.

The approved humane alternative is to place the unwanted child for adoption where, even if it has the good fortune to be taken into a good home, it must some day undergo the traumatic experience of learning that its real mother didn't want it.

There were 26,000 known cases of child abuse and neglect in New York City in 1976. It would seem that those so strongly opposed to abortion must be aware of these facts. Are they assuming the right to decide for the right to life for these unborn under these circumstances?

Basketer Bypasses Cash Register

Dear Editor:

Although the Ulster County Consumer Information Service sector of the Consumer Fraud Bureau is always eager to have its accomplishments and exploits chronicled in the local media, Chazy Dowaliby's Jan 27 article on the market basket index was misleading and incomplete.

Even if one can appreciate Ms. Dowaliby's subterranean sense of humor, her erroneous statement claiming that "each week John Burstein spends about $200 for groceries" is incorrect in two respects.

As Ms. Dowaliby accompanied me while I was doing the survey, she must have noticed that we bypassed the checkout counter on the way out. The best part of these shopping sprees is that we do not pay for anything and it's entirely legal. What we do is walk up and down the supermarket aisles and record the prices of the various market basket items. After averaging the prices, we multiply them by a pre-determined weekly consumption figure, obtained from the New York City Department of Consumer Affairs, add the whole thing up and presto — one market basket index.

In addition to recording the prices, market basket surveyors note that unit price information is prominently and properly placed on market shelves and that dairy cases do not contain any items with illegal expiration dates. On more than one occasion surveyors have brought unit pricing and expiration date violations to the attention of the supermarket managers, and have waited until those situations were rectified.

Where Ms. Dowaliby gets her $200 weekly figure remains a mystery. I suppose she doesn't read the Freeman's front page on Mondays, for if she did she would surely know that the weekly market basket total has ranged from $62 to $70 since the market basket was instituted eight months ago.

In light of the fact that we discussed the purpose of the market basket as well as its intrinsic value to Kingston shoppers at great length, it is grossly unfair for Ms. Dowaliby to ascribe any instructive value to the program, other than giving shoppers an opportunity to compare food prices from one week to the next to see what is going up and what might be coming down.

She writes as if we are trying to tell homemakers what to buy and how to feed their families. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Market basket readers know we deal in food groups and not specific products. When we do list an item — e.g., sirloin steak, coffee, etc. — it is only for the purpose of providing price comparison information.

While she may be able to make an educated guess that the market basket is nutritionally unsound, WE cannot, do not, never have and never will. We have accepted the Department of Consumer Affairs guidelines on the subject, and although we have documentation that would support that department's findings, we are content knowing that the survey is sufficiently varied to provide shoppers with a kind of barometer to gauge the turbulence of prevailing supermarket prices.

Despite Ms. Dowaliby's unsolicited thoughts and opinions we will continue to publish the Kingston market basket index as a service to local consumers. If this misinformation makes the Freeman uncomfortable, however, we will be happy to delete it from our mailing list.

JONATHAN BURSTEIN
Consumer Fraud Bureau

P.S. Judging from Ms. Dowaliby's documented difficulty in tracking down the source of our "so-called nutritious list," I suggest that she call the Department of Consumer Affairs Research Office at (212) 566-0888. If she asks for Alan Cohen, I'm sure he will be happy to fill in any missing pieces in the market basket puzzle.

(Ms. Dowaliby replies: The 'subterranean' sense of humor injected into the article was aimed not at the Consumer Information Service but at the overlap and incredible bureaucracy of government groups, even those aimed at helping the public cut through red tape. Although Alan Cohen was not available when the Freeman called the Dept. of Consumer Affairs, two people in that agency could not provide any information on the origin of the market basket and did indeed refer the reporter to the Dept. of Labor Statistics, etc.)

The $200 market basket total was the sum of three shopping list baskets filled at different supermarkets — at $65 a basket, the addition seems right enough.

The Dept. of Agriculture kitchens in Hyattsville, Md. flatly denied that the food list read to them was based on their Moderate Cost Family Food Plan, but indicated, as reported, that the contents would probably be "as nutritious as anything else."

The Business of Blarney

WASHINGTON - The New Republic, a publication whose history would make you anticipate it would be sympathetic to the new administration, has ripped Carter's Secretary of the Treasury, W. Michael Blumenthal. That's a bit odd, because Blumenthal is the sort of chap The New Republic has cottoned to in the past.

A pussy cat capitalist who can articulate expressions like "corporate responsibility" without stuttering or gagging, the former head of the Bendix Corporation, Blumenthal served in the Treasury Department under Kennedy and Johnson and is a firm believer in the government-supported corporate capitalism which The New Republic has advocated through many of the decades of this century. As a bonus, W. Michael has a Ph.D. from Princeton and is decidedly not the kind of businessman who thinks only fags belong to the Book of the Month Club.

Nevertheless a certain Mr. "Suetonius" writes of Blumenthal's years under Kennedy-Johnson: "The system he represented so skillfully was very largely the old imperial rip-off that left the third world muttering the angry recriminations that have exploded in the resource price wars of the 1970's. Blumenthal was too smart not to see this; his career also reflects an uncritical acceptance of it. If there was any doubt when he left (the government)... Terry joined the Pirates for keeps at Bendix. The firm's resurgence under Blumenthal was accomplished in part by a cavalier social policy which relocated plants from places like Long Island City, New York, where Bendix was a major employer, to sweatier, higher margin precincts like Mexico."

How do we square Mr. Suetonius' charge with a recent article by Blumenthal in which he says: "The communities in which businesses operate have... changed. Management today must consider what effect a plant closing, for example, will have on a community, particularly if that decision involves the loss of an important source of local employment."

Does this make Blumenthal a morally duplicitous character talking out of both sides of his mouth or is the Secretary of the Treasury part of a generation of CEO's (Harvard Business School slang for chief executive officer) who have to know how to sling the blarney in order to mitigate the public and/or the political reaction to necessary business decisions? Blumenthal has often told his business colleagues they should make sure they lead the cries of condemnation against immoral business practices: "It should be business executives, not outsiders who are the most vocal in condemning improper conduct. After all, it is the reputation of business that is at stake."

One of Blumenthal's problems is that one capitalist can't be too much more "ethical" or "moral" than his fellows if he wants to stay in business. Blumenthal says that while he was at Bendix the word was no pour boires for foreign officials to get business and, "This policy has not hurt us a bit." OK, but it would be suicidal if handing out gratuities were the norm everywhere. Bendix would have to do the same or die.

The same is true with other decisions which some people may want to criticize as morally wrong. Like Bendix leaving New York for Mexico. Since the middle of the last century, when recognizably modern capitalism began, it has been constantly necessary to move money and labor from country to country as conditions change. There have been times when instead of moving Bendix to Mexico, Bendix would have moved the necessary number of Mexicans to New York.

The Coffee Ripoff

At the moment, coffee is going down the drain. Americans in considerable numbers are switching to tea and cocoa. The coffee swindle is so enormous that food chains are advising customers not to buy it at $3 a pound. Or in restaurants at 30 cents a cup.

As oil has its OPEC, coffee has its ICO - International Coffee Organization. This is an outrageous cartel which tries to control the amount of coffee planting, the quality of arabica, grown largely in Brazil; and robusta, which comes from Africa, India and Indonesia.

Coffee, like oil, can be stored. Brazil, the number one producer of the world, grew so much coffee between 1925 and 1940 that it ran out of drying barns. The java was piled in tall hills, soaked with gasoline, and burned. This kept the surplus off the world market.

The evergreen shrubs which grow coffee average 23 feet in height. They grow ruddy cherries, which, when split, become coffee beans. They grow in shade, are dried in sunlight. It is roasted, ground, and sipped by one-third of the people of the world.

Almost any nation which lies between the Tropic of Cancer and the Tropic of Capricorn can grow coffee if there is sufficient rainfall. The farmer requires between eight and ten months to grow coffee; it's a one-crop product.

Two things can hurt a coffee crop - a fungus (hemileia vastatrix) called "leaf rust," and frost. Brazilian farmers were hit by each one in 1970 and 1975. Not so hard hit that they had to export all they grew.

Oh, no. The crunch will be felt as they plant and grow new coffee shrubs. This will hold production down until the spring of 1979. Put simplistically, Brazil measures coffee by 132-pound bags. In the past decade, it produced 216 million bags.

Of this, about 169 million bags were sold abroad. If one deducts what the Brazilians drink, there should be a surplus of 37 million bags of coffee in warehouses. And yet, even though the nation normally exports 16.9 million bags per year, it has decided to sell only 8.2 million bags this year.

There's the ripoff. The ICO could balance this artificial shortage by asking Colombia, the Gold Coast of Africa, Mexico and others to sell surplus coffee at reasonable prices. This is doubtful.

A little research shows that the true villain is neither frost nor leaf rust. It's the Brazilian government. Ten years ago the government decided to play with the agricultural economy. The officials discovered soybeans - a two-crop product. They also decided to plant sugar instead of coffee.

Diversification is understandable, and, to an extent, wise. No nation wants to depend upon one product. Brazil cut their subsidies to coffee farmers, and even paid them to uproot aging coffee trees. Further, they urged coffee merchants to start farms in the barren north.

In time, coffee acreage declined from 10 million acres to 5.9 million. Cotton production rose. So did soybeans. And sugar, rice and corn. Brazil also tried to produce more cattle, but failed because it made no distinction between beef and dairy. The coffee crop, in a weakened condition, could not survive plant infestation and frost.

The coffee industry in Brazil employs 1 million workers. These have been hurt by massive layoffs. Painfully, the government is learning that artificial economic controls often work against the people they are designed to assist.

By decreasing the amount of coffee to be exported, Brazil expects Europeans and Americans to pay wildly inflated prices for less of their favorite beverage. The farmers have put their money on a habit. Coffee drinkers, they are certain, cannot and will not kick the habit.

The American Chamber of Commerce for Brazil states that in 1975 the nation produced 21.2 million bags of coffee and exported 14.6 million. The part sold abroad brought in $933 million.

Forget the string of zeroes. Think of it this way. Last year Brazil sold about two billion pounds of coffee for 48 cents a pound. This year, the supply will be chopped in half and Brazil will charge $2.41 a pound.

It is not likely that Brazil would have the nerve to jack prices about 500 percent unless the other coffee-growing nations have agreed to be parties to the mugging.

Camilo Calazans, president of the Brazilian Coffee Institute, pooh-poohs U.S. will power. A boycott, he said, would have to be long and intense to influence his coffee prices.

We tossed King George III out on his sceptre for saying less about tea...

Jack Anderson

State Dept. Wants Java Prices Up

WASHINGTON — The Great Coffee Shortage, according to the statistical evidence, isn't nearly as dire as the coffee producers claim. On the contrary, the statistics indicate that the shortage has been contrived to justify a boost in coffee prices.

The State Dept., meanwhile, has been quickly circumventing congressional efforts to reduce the huge profits of the foreign coffee producers. The department looks upon the extra profits as a form of foreign aid, insiders explain.

Brazil is the biggest recipient of the coffee windfall but draws no foreign aid from the United States. The State Dept., therefore, would like Brazilians to collect more for their coffee in order to keep the country stable.

For the record, a spokesman denied that the State Dept. favors higher coffee prices. "The coffee producers will suffer later," he predicted, "for the high prices."

A pound of coffee, which cost about $1.30 at the store 18 months ago, now sells for around $3. Enraged consumers are howling. Coffee boycotts are being organized. But the coffee magnates claim, with a shrugging of shoulders, that a 1975 Brazilian frost caused the prices to skyrocket.

Yet Brazil has made a remarkable recovery. Despite the frost damage, the Brazilians managed to export a million more bags of coffee in 1976 than in 1975. World coffee exports reached 58 million bags in 1976, the second highest figure of all time.

Congressional investigators suspect, therefore, that the coffee cartel is merely imitating the oil cartel and is putting the squeeze on the coffee consumers. Rep. Fred Richmond, D.-N.Y., told us that coffee-drinking Americans will pay the coffee cartel almost $6 billion a year if prices remain at the present level. That's more than double the national coffee bill for 1975.

Tight market monopolies by a few large coffee retailers, according to congressional studies, are contributing to higher coffee prices. The Big Two — General Foods and Procter and Gamble — control about half of the U.S. coffee market.

The Federal Trade Commission has charged a General Food subsidiary, Maxwell House, with illegal coffee pricing practices. According to the allegations, General Foods cut prices below cost to eliminate competition.

Footnote: Two New York congressmen, Fred Richmond and Ben Rosenthal, both Democrats, will hold hearings on coffee pricing beginning Feb. 22. Meanwhile, Richmond plans to push for a 50 per cent decrease in coffee consumption. General Foods had no spokesman available at press time.

GOVERNMENT BURGLARIES — Startling new evidence has come to light that the government hasn't limited its burglaries to socialists and radicals. No less than the former Navy chief, Adm. Arleigh Burke, is convinced that government gumshoes, probably CIA burglars, broke into his private office and stole some important personal documents in 1963.

There is evidence to support his suspicion that even the nation's most prominent citizens may have been the victims of government tactics which were believed aimed at only left-wing extremists. For Burke recently discovered that the missing documents had turned up in a secret file of the Naval Investigations Service.

These documents included a raw transcript of a long interview that the admiral had granted in August 1963 to a Greek newsmen, Elias Demetrapoulos. In the interview, Burke bluntly declared that the armed forces had nothing to do with the Bay of Pigs disaster. He implied that the CIA was solely to blame for the fiasco.

Only Burke, his secretary and Demetrapoulos knew of the interview before it was published in October 1963. And none of them released the raw transcript, which was edited in Burke's own handwriting.

It was a copy of this raw transcript, complete with Burke's handwritten remarks, that mysteriously turned up in the Navy file. Notations on the file indicate that the Navy was so worried about someone getting wind of the heist that all but six copies of the Burke papers were destroyed.

Burke, who received the prestigious Medal of Freedom from President Ford last month, is upset about the apparent burglary. It occurred after he had left the Navy but was emerging as the most articulate conservative critic of the Kennedy administration's military policies.

After conferring with his lawyers, he said: "Regrettably, the only conclusion we reached is that ... an unauthorized and illegal entry took place in my private office" in Washington.

Our sources have told us that the Navy originally got the sensitive Burke papers "from another agency." The former admiral told us that while it is "Only a guess," he believed the "other agency" is the CIA.

There is no doubt in Burke's mind that the documents were stolen. "I can't think of any other way," he said, that they could have wound up in the government's possession.

Scientists Made U-Turns On Nuclear Power Route

Betty Hogan's excerpts from the official record of the AEC budget hearings began to turn Larry Bogart around. (This is not Larry Bogart of Kingston, who has been accosted on the street lately by agitated friends. More on him at a later date.)

In them were case after case of "the most unbelievable carelessness" in the handling of nuclear power findings—for example, calculations of yield being off by factors of 1,000, not to mention the dangers of radioactivity.

"And I suddenly woke up," says Bogart, "to the fact that nuclear power was a wonderful thing if you didn't have any living organisms around—if this was a mechanical world and everything was made out of steel or cardboard or wood. But it was deadly for humans."

Larry gave the report to the nuclear products manager of Allied Chemical, who took it up with his boss in New York, and came back to Larry and said, "You know, everything she says in this manuscript is true, but if we depended on women, we'd still be sitting in caves cooking our meals over a wood fire; we've got to go ahead."

"Well," says Larry, "it didn't set so good with me." He checked it out with Leo Goodman, at one time Walter Reuther's right-hand man. Goodman, suspicious of Bogart at first, finally "opened up everything to me. I spent three days with him. What he showed me convinced me beyond a shadow of a doubt that there was something jinxed about this technology."

He went to Arthur Squires, then chairman of the chemical engineering department at City University (New York). Squires agreed "this is the most damnable technology ever invented."

These men are not alone. Others who made the 180-degree turn-around are:

John W. Gofman, once assistant director of the Lawrence Radiation Lab (Livermore, Calif.) and co-author with Arthur R. Tamplin of the book Poisoned Power.

Tamplin, chief of staff on several Lawrence projects concerning the effects of radiation.

Alvin Weinberg, once director of Oak Ridge National Laboratories, now Director of ERDA's safety division.

Dr. Dean Abrahamson, an M.D. and reactor designer formerly with Babcock and Wilcox, reactor manufacturers.

Dr. Ernest J. Sternglass, then with Westinghouse, now professor of radiation physics at U. of Pittsburgh Medical School.

And others. What did these men see that turned them against the very technology they had once championed? We've all heard about the effects of fallout or leakage—cancer, leukemia, non-specific aging ("For every year a man works in a nuke plant he ages eight years," says Bogart). But for those of us who are not directly exposed, how does radioactivity take hold?

The main path from fallout to the body is the food chain. Every organism gathers its nutrients from its surroundings and concentrates them into bundles. In water, for example, phytoplankton (the food for fish) gather and concentrate nutrient particles. Fish eat the phytoplankton and make still larger bundles of the particles. People eat the fish and bundle the particles even larger. A beautiful natural process, but...

"H3 (radioactive) is the bad actor," says Bogart. "But the body can't tell it from H2, ordinary hydrogen, the basic building block for all organisms."

"Cesium 137 (radioactive) so closely resembles potassium that it hitchhikes along with the potassium. Iodine 131 (radioactive) so closely resembles normal iodine that it, too, is taken up by the body—particularly children, whose need for iodine is 20 times that of adults.

"The fetus, in fact, is the greatest radiation concentrator of all."

"Strontium 90 (radioactive) is very closely related to calcium. The body can't distinguish between them, and the result is that strontium builds up in the bone marrow, where it blasts the precursors of the white blood cells, that's one origin of leukemia."

There is a lot we don't know in the field of microbiology, but, says Bogart, "we do know that if you put radioactive wastes in very dilute form into a river, within seconds organisms begin the concentration process, and the material goes right up the food chain."

Back to the technology. The nuclear industry needs the reprocessing plant, where spent reactor fuel is processed to recover a percentage of it as usable fuel.

West Valley, New York, has one. It sits out in the relative boondocks near Lake Erie. Nelson Rockefeller got Peter Grace (Grace Chemical) to finance half of it. Grace put up $8 million and the state put up $8 million.

But after three years of the plant's operation, Grace got frightened and pulled out. They couldn't stop it from leaking.

So Rockefeller got J. Paul Getty to take it over. Three more years, and Getty pulled out. The plant was leaking into Cattaraugus Creek, which emptied into Lake Erie.

"A group of University of Rochester scientists," says Bogart, "sneaked down there during one Easter vacation and took some samples out of the creek. They had them analyzed at the AEC lab in New York, and the strontium 90 count was 36,000 times greater than permissible."

"Well, word got out that it was really a turkey of a plant. They had to bring in young kids to keep cleaning

Ethics Probe Is Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader John Rhodes wants to know if there are "any other Wayne Hayeses in Congress."

A select committee on ethics, probing back at least four years into members' accounts, could do the job, Rhodes said Tuesday in offering the same resolution he offered when Hays, the former Ohio Democrat, resigned from Congress. Hays' resignation came as an investigation was pressed against him on allegations a woman was put on a House committee payroll to serve only as his mistress.

Rhodes is calling for a committee of five Democrats and five Republicans with authority to go back as far as 1973.

it up all the time. They could only work 20 minutes before they'd reach their radiation limit.

"When Getty got the news that in order to bring that plant into compliance with the new AEC standards he would have to spend not $15 million, as the AEC had told him, but $600 million, he closed the plant. And the thing is sitting up there now, a great menace, leaking — leaking like crazy." The vested interests want the state to take responsibility for it and pick up the tab.

What's the answer? How do we get out from under the menace of nuclear power, from which no one can hide?

More on that next week.

Politicos: A Breed Apart

WASHINGTON - It is the natural way of things in the capital that House Minority Leader James Rhodes, more powerless now with a Democratic President and overwhelming Democratic congressional majorities than ever before, should be writing a book about power.

He has finished one chapter of a volume which will explore the motivations and pressures which drive people to seek power, not only in politics but other fields as well.

Rhodes' first book, published last year, analyzed Congress and found it wanting. He autographed the first copy of that book to Majority Leader Tip O'Neill: "To my friend, no matter what the book says."

Other action about town:

• KING KONG'S HELPER — In case you still don't believe politicians are a breed apart, comes more proof. Francis O'Brien, a highly regarded former aide to House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino during the Watergate hearings and then to Sen. Walter Mondale during his vice presidential campaign, recently went to work as a vice president of Gulf and Western.

O'Brien has been so politically involved the past couple years he never had time to go to a movie. But the first assignment he got in his new job in the business world was to promote the company's movie, "King Kong."

So O'Brien went to see the updated version of the old classic with a fellow employee. "That's a good movie," he said on his way out of the theater. "It should do even better than that one about the whale."

• MITCHELL RINGS THE BELL — Clarence Mitchell, the civil rights leader, was not impressed with new Attorney General Griffin Bell's statement that while he was resigning his lily-white private club he might rejoin it after he left the Justice Department. "You can put your securities in trust, but you can't put your prejudice in trust," Mitchell said.

• HOT SAUCE — The veddy social Pisces Club here has not yet recovered from the farewell party former Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert Strauss recently tossed for himself there. It featured Texas-style chili from an original Strauss recipe. But just before the guests arrived Strauss marched into the kitchen to taste it, decided it was too mild, and dumped in lots more hot sauce. He didn't measure it, either. The chef is reported variously to have (a) scowled, (b) screamed, (c) ordered Strauss out of his kitchen.

• OLD AND NEW HANDS — Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington is out to squelch rumors that he won't run again in four years. He held the first Senate hearings this year on the recent rash of oil tanker spills, and an aide said he had never seen the 76-year-old Senator "so fired up on an issue."

The Lighter Side

'A Winter's Tale' Updated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As we turn down our thermostats in response to President Carter's energy conservation program, we keep hearing that people in England always keep the indoor temperature that low.

I therefore thought it might be helpful to get some advice from the Mother Country on how to cope with chilly homes and offices. So I obtained an interview with William Shakespeare, the well-known Stratford bard and weather buff:

Q. Mr. Shakespeare, what is the technical term for weather like we are having this winter?

A. "Not so hot."

Q. Could you put that in language the average layman can understand?

A. "'tis a naughty night to swim in."

Q. We've been hearing a lot about the wind-chill factor. Could you explain a little about that?

A. "The air bites shrewdly. It is a nipping and an eager air. Many can brook the weather that love not the wind."

Q. I see. President Carter is wearing long johns to help keep warm. Is that what you recommend?

A. "I know a trick worth two of that."

Q. Would you share it with us?

A. "Wallow naked in the December snow by thinking on fantastic summer's heat."

more efficient and an investigation into the possibility of the city buying electrical power directly from the state.

The fact that Kingston Democratic Party chairman Lawrence Woerner is on the city payroll receiving close to $3,000 a year as a bingo inspector was questioned by Alderman Clarence Raichle, R-Ward 1, who wanted to know what Woerner's qualifications were.

The other Republicans who voted against the budget expressed concern about the city property tax, which has been increasing at a rate of about 10 per cent a year.

"We keep asking city residents to tighten their belts and I think it's time the city did the same," said Robert Fitzgerald, R-Ward 4.

Fitzgerald said he has been getting calls from residents of his ward who are "frightened."

"These people are wondering whether or not they're going to be able to put food on the table," said Fitzgerald.

Minority Leader Titus Sims, R-Ward 13, said he could not vote in favor of the budget because he felt further reductions could be made, but he did not cite specific areas that should be examined. Sims also read into the record a portion of last night's Daily Freeman editorial which called the pending Republican vote "token opposition."

"I take exception to that statement," said Sims, adding that he fully understood the seriousness of the vote on the budget.

The most ardent defender of the budget was Finance Committee chairman John Finch, D-Ward 5, who wondered where all the critics were when the budget was being considered by his committee. Finch said that Sims showed up, asked two questions, "and then he hustled off to a city Republican meeting to give them a report on what was happening in the Common Council. I heard from no one," said Finch, noting that no one wants to raise taxes if it can be avoided.

The new budget calls for a tax rate of $107.67 per $1,000 assessed valuation, an increase of close to $10 over last year's figure.

In other matters last night the Council:

- Approved police and fire contracts for 1976 and 1977, with employees of each department getting $1,100 over the two year period. The pacts were the result of binding arbitration and were both approved

- Voted in favor of applying for state aid to help defray the cost of a $367,000 garbage transfer station, which the federal government recently refused to fund. The Council is seeking the money from the State Department of Environmental Conservation.

- Approved the Community Development Advisory Committee's (CDAC) recommendation to spend the city's $1.3 million third year entitlement on projects which were begun during the first two years of the program. In addition, the CDAC is recommending that the city earmark $128,000 to upgrade three fire stations around the city.

- Approved the granting of a sewer contract to the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios. The contract was tabled late last year when objections were raised by a competing firm which had submitted a lower bid. The competing firm was from New York City and planned to open an office in Kingston. Brinnier and Larios is located in Kingston.

- Granted a 25-year tax exemption to Granada Builders, Inc., developers of the St. Ann's property senior citizen housing complex. The exemption, which sets a $150 per unit rate on the 104 unit complex, will make the project economically feasible for the company. If the project does not go through, the city's Community Development funds would be placed in jeopardy. Sims voted against the exemption, saying that all of his questions about the future impact of the move have not been answered.

- Heard remarks from Bradley Wilson and Joseph Roglieri, both endorsing the construction of the proposed North-South Arterial. Wilson, head of the Out Of Work Taxpayers Association of Ulster County, thanked the Council for their support of the project and presented the signatures from over 1,000 area residents who also support the arterial.

Roglieri, president of the local building trades council, also thanked the aldermen, noting that if the money doesn't come into Kingston it will probably go to New York City.

Last night's meeting was recessed, rather than adjourned, because of pending legislation coming from the Traffic Control Committee.

Diplomat Murders Family

PARIS (UPI) — A French diplomat who said he was having serious financial problems shot his wife and two children to death late Tuesday then drove to a police station and surrendered, authorities said today.

They quoted Gerard Amanrich, 55, as telling them, "I am a minister plenipotentiary and I have just murdered my family."

Police said he told them he had wanted to commit suicide, but lost his nerve at the last minute.

"I've been very depressed lately and I can't shake myself out of it," he said.

Police said Amanrich admitted killing his wife, Chantal, 52, their daughter Ines, 19, and son Stephane, 16, at about 11 p.m. in their apartment in a wealthy section of Paris.

Amanrich, a career diplomat, was ambassador to the Vatican from 1974 until six months ago, but had received no new assignment.

"I was having such serious money problems that I was having trouble supporting my family,"

County REALTORS receive 'Better' Portrait

KINGSTON — The Ulster County Board of Realtors has been awarded an official portrait of Uncle Sam for conducting the best campaign in the "Make America Better" Bicentennial program of the New York State Association of Realtors.

Cited for the grand prize at the state association's winter meeting in January, the Ulster County board led a field of 55 boards across the state taking part in the program.

The portrait is a reproduction of an oil painting accepted by the U.S. State Department as the official portrait of Uncle Sam, an 18th-Century patriot who was born in Massachusetts but lived most of his life in the Mid-Hudson Valley area of New York.

The original oil painting now hangs in the White House. The Ulster County board's "Make America Better" campaign involved presentation of the film, "Uncle Sam, the Man and the Legend," to some 10,000 students in the county's 42 public and private schools, followed by a mammoth art and essay contest on patriotic themes. Some 150 student winners were treated to a "birthday party for Uncle Sam" in June at the conclusion of the four-month campaign.

Campaign co-chairmen were Realtors Dolores Hagedorn of Woodstock and Sylvia Snowden of Kingston.

Mutual Savings Banks Close on Good Note

NEW YORK—The nation's mutual savings banks closed out 1976 with a $350-million net deposit inflow in December, a near-record for that month which brought the industry's total inflow for the year to $5.3 billion, according to preliminary figures released by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. With an estimated $1.4 billion interest credited to savings accounts in December, depositors at mutual savings banks received an all-time high of $7 billion interest on their savings in 1976.

"Our industry's over-all deposit experience last year represents a considerable strengthening from the $4.8 billion net inflow of 1975, Dr. Grover W. Ensley, NAMSAB president, said. While the 1976 inflow was the industry's third highest on record, he said, it was still quite a bit less than the peak inflows of $5.7 billion in 1971 and $5.5 billion in 1972.

FINANCIAL BRIEFS

Fungus May Up Coffee Prices

Retail coffee prices, already in economic orbit, may get a fungus-fueled boost in the next 24 months — even if scientists are able to contain "hemileia vastatrix" within the plantations of Nicaragua.

The plague, commonly known as "coffee rust," already is withering the leaves of coffee plants across 17,500 acres of Nicaraguan landscape, threatening the entire Central American crop. A Brazilian official Tuesday indicated the threat might apply equally to soaring coffee prices, already projected at $5 a pound on the American market by the end of the year.

Gas Crisis Idles Steel Workers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The American Iron & Steel Institute says an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 workers in the basic steel industry were off the job nationwide because of sharp reductions in natural gas and ice covered rivers that have halted navigation.

The figure represents about 10 per cent of the total number of workers employed in basic steel, the direct mill production of raw steel into rough ingots and billets.

Checks with various major steel firms showed most of the layoffs were in finishing plants, where natural gas is used to treat steel to give it required hardness.

Congress Probes Bank Probers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The three federal agencies which examine the books of the nation's banks now have been examined by congressional investigators. They got low marks.

The General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress, issued a two-volume report Tuesday criticizing the comptroller of the currency, the Federal Reserve System and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which together supervise 14,700 banks with combined assets of nearly a trillion dollars.

It said they have failed to use their full enforcement powers, that their examinations of banks have not probed deeply enough, that

Carey Budget: 'A Fatal Blow'

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Four business groups charged today that Gov. Hugh Carey's 1977-78 budget could deal a "fatal blow" to the state's economy by driving companies out of New York. Although Carey and legislative leaders have expressed concern over the state's business climate, the groups said, the collective response "smacks of political expediency first and realistic hard decisions to help our economy second."

"Our public leaders have not taken steps toward viable solutions," the organizations told a joint legislative hearing on Carey's proposed $11.345 billion spending plan for the fiscal year beginning April 1.

The charges were made by representatives of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce, Associated Industries, the state Council of Retail Merchants and the New York Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Florida Loss Bahama's Boon

MIAMI (UPI) — The freeze that devastated Florida's winter vegetable crop may prove a boon to Bahamian farmers who often see part of their harvest go to waste.

Out-island tomato production gluts Bahamian markets at this time of year, a spokesman for the Bahamas Ministry of Agriculture said Tuesday, and about half the out-island crop usually rots on the vine because of the market situation.

The ministry has invited farmers to pool their vegetable crops and take advantage of Florida markets. Cucumbers, which are exported by barge from the island of Abaco, are expected to bring premium prices in south Florida.

Waterous Hits Family's Record

WOODSTOCK — Chief Constable William Waterous said Family's past track record "has been less than desirable," and a poll of local clergy showed their opinion of Family ranging from neutral to enthusiastic.

Those were the highlights of a recent meeting of the newly appointed Woodstock commission to study the town's social services situation. The main topic of the night was a discussion of the relationship of Family, a service group for "any problem under the sun," to the town, its agencies, and other organizations.

Waterous, a consultant to the commission, said that in many past cases, "Family has not had the proper written authorization from other agencies it should legally deal with in assuming jurisdiction in some matters." Until he is directed in writing to refer certain cases to Family, he said, he does not feel he can legally do so.

Waterous said the major causes of friction between the beleaguered referral and crisis intervention agency and police are lodged in its roadhouse and the runaway problems it insists on handling. He called for stricter screening of both Family's staff and the people who stay at the roadhouse.

Contacts with clergy had resulted in no derogatory downgrading of Family, but all local ministers agreed that "some internal reorganization" would be helpful in Family's relationship with town government and other Woodstock organizations.

Commission Member Rev. Walter Kortrey said one controversy involving Family was in the process of being resolved. The Lutheran congregation had just overwhelmingly voted to allow Family's homeless Seedling Playgroup to use the Lutheran parsonage for pre-school activities.

Commission members also agreed a major stumbling block to regaining Family's cut-off funding in the county budget was lack of support by Woodstock officials. But Rev. Kortrey pointed out that much progress had recently been made in eliminating some of the problem areas that caused past strife between Family and town authorities.

The commission will serve as an advisory committee to Family on a temporary basis to help the agency develop a permanent group. Family favors the concept and has asked the commission to advise it for the next three months.

In the Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association, Family has long found one of its major adversaries. The commission includes two representatives from the association.

Mental Services Detailed

KINGSTON — A revised directory of mental health services for Ulster County is now available to local health and social services agencies, schools, churches and private individuals.

The directory, first published in 1963 by the Ulster County Association of Mental Health has been revised twice since then.

Included in the blue book's listings is general information concerning state mental hygiene laws, names and terms of office of the county's nine-person mental health board, and admission procedures for state psychiatric centers, as well as listings of mental health services inside and outside the county.

The book will be distributed free to persons directly involved with mental health work and is available to the public at a charge of 25 cent per copy from the Mental Health Association's office at 27 East O'Reilly St.

Driving Course

KYSERIKE — The three-hour safe driving course required of New York State residents who take the road test will be given at Rondout Valley High School Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 7 and 8.

The class will begin each evening at 6:45 p.m. in Room 306, with enrollment limited to 35 and priority given to residents of the Rondout Valley on a first-call basis.

Registrants are required to present a New York State learner's permit. Attendance at both sessions is mandatory to obtain the proper certificate for the course. A $3 fee is payable the night of the class.

Anyone having further questions is asked to call the school guidance office, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

including Valentine Schwind. He said WTTA is non-political and non-partisan, but totally dedicated to stripping waste and inefficiency from government. And he also said the decision of his executive committee would govern any vote he cast as a commission member.

The commission will meet again late this week. That session will include a roundtable discussion on welfare, the problems home relief has created in Woodstock, how Family relates to welfare, and problems of home relief recipients.

Article 8 Concerns Nuclear Siting Boards

Hearings Delayed on Regulation

ALBANY — Hearings on Article 8, a pioneer state regulation which established siting boards to review nuclear plant applications such as the one proposed for Cementon, have been delayed by the state Public Service Commission.

The hearings, scheduled to review Article 8 amendments suggested by the PSC staff, have been postponed to Feb. 15 and 16, starting at 10 a.m. each day in the board room of PSC headquarters in the Empire State Plaza, Albany.

Whatever changes are proposed will have little if any effect on nuclear plant applications now in the hearing stage, a PSC spokesman said. The Cementon application, covering a 1,200-megawatt nuclear power plant that the Power Authority of the State of New York wants to build near the Ulster-Greene County line, went into hearings six months ago.

PSC staff proposals on Article 8 changes were delayed by illness of one of the principal staff witnesses, the commission said. Hearings were to have begun last week.

Article 8 of the Public Service Law was enacted in 1972 to provide for a five-member Board on Electric Generation Siting and the Environment which would decide on the need for and environmental compatibility of any proposed major generating facility, unique arrangement for any nuclear plant proposal in New York State.

The Cementon application is being reviewed at joint hearings of the state siting board and the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission, a unique arrangement for any nuclear plant proposal in New York State. Only one other such joint hearing has been held nationally.

Siting board members are the PSC chairman, the three state commissioners of health, environmental conservation and commerce, and an ad hoc member chosen from the judicial district in which the plant is proposed to be located.

Scout News

Woodstock Eagle Scout

WOODSTOCK—Woodstock Boy Scout Troop 34 will hold a Court of Honor Monday, Feb. 7, at the Woodstock Reformed Church, sponsoring organization of the troop.

Highlighting the evening will be the awarding of Eagle badge, the highest award in scouting, to Craig T. Turner of Woodstock.

Other boys advancing to higher ranks are Marc Berg and Frank Eighmey, Life badge; Greg France, Star; James Brunner, First Class; and Scott Peters, Tenderfoot. The program will begin at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served after the presentations.

High Falls Award Fete

HIGH FALLS—Eighty-five merit badges were awarded to the Boy Scouts of High Falls Troop 24 at the recent annual Awards Night at the High Falls Firehouse.

Among the badges earned by the scouts was the Aviation badge. The scouts built and flew model planes, studied the dynamics of flight and toured JFK International Airport as part of the requirements. Eleven scouts completed the badge work.

Seventeen scouts earned the electricity merit badge which included making a functioning electric motor.

Charles Ayasse, advancement chairman for Troop 24, announced the new ranks achieved during the year by members of the troop. New Tenderfoot scouts were Donald Brice, Daniel Sindt and John Williams.

Moving to Second Class were Gregory Cross, Robert S. Diamond, Charles Haas, James Petrozak, Andrew Pfeufer, Michael Polinsky, Peter Sindt, Matthew Skalla and John Stockin.

Achieving First Class Rank were Charles Locke, Joseph Petrozak, David Stauby and Kevin VanLaer.

Also honored was Mrs. Alan Petrozak, chairman of the Mother's Club.

The troop will have several camping trips during the year as well as events such as roller skating, hiking and field trips.

Richard Stauby serves as Scoutmaster assisted by Milton Polinsky. There are 26 scouts in the troop which is sponsored by the High Falls Fire Company.

Guard Recruit Concept

KINGSTON—A new concept in recruiting for the benefit of local non-prior service personnel has been announced by the 1st Battalion, 166th Field Artillery, New York Army National Guard.

Training would be after completion of spring semester or quarter of high school, college or similar educational course and prior to the beginning of the fall semester or quarter.

The program was designed to accommodate the many non-prior service personnel who would enlist in the ARNG if inactive duty training allows for a completion date prior to the beginning of their fall semester of civilian schooling.

Goldbergs Want Stringent Regulations Upheld

Saugerties Village Zoning Codes Face Test in Court Friday

SAUGERTIES — After one postponement, the first legal challenge to the Village of Saugerties' 21-year-old zoning ordinance will be heard in Ulster County Supreme Court on Feb. 4. And, while most such litigations elsewhere have aimed at striking down hard and fast zoning standards, the Saugerties case seeks to uphold the stringent rules of the ordinance.

At Friday's hearing, Partition Street residents, Philip and Cheryl Goldberg, will argue that the local Zoning Board illegally loosened the regulations on commercial operations on their block. Through their attorney, Timothy Murphy, they will ask the court to reverse a determination by the board that recently allowed an auto repair shop to open near their home.

The board, in a split decision, upheld the issuance of a use permit granted by the zoning enforcement officer for the operation of the garage. The permit had been granted on the grounds that the building involved had been used as a garage in years past, prior to the adoption of the zoning ordinance. The board voted 2-1 that, although the village area involved was zoned residential in 1956, the building in question could revert to commercial designation.

The Goldbergs, in behalf of themselves and their neighbors, objected to that line of reasoning. Most upper Partition Street homeowners feel there had been no continuance of the non-conforming use (as in a business allowed retroactively in a family residential district) of the building for more than a decade. They argued that it had been used for storage only or totally abandoned during that time.

Once the commercial use of the premises had been discontinued, they insisted, a break in its former non-conforming classification had occurred. As they interpreted the law, any future owner could purchase the building as a residence, but not as a business.

The Goldbergs, convinced their rights as property owners in a residential section had not been protroted by village officials, appealed the board's decision.

The challenged zoners will be represented in court Friday by village attorney

William Brinnier. He is expected to argue there was no intent by any owner of the property over the years to abandon its commercial use, and that no previous owner had ever encountered opposition from neighbors in regard to business operations on the site. The hearing had originally been set for Jan. 7, but

Judge Aaron Klein postponed it to Feb. 4 to allow Brinnier further time to prepare his memorandum. Murphy's brief was filed Jan. 5.

Bewildering Setback for KHS

By STEVE KANE
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — As is traditional in basketball, Ketcham High came out on the Field House floor Tuesday night and began to warm up for its game with Kingston with a layup drill. When the game began the Indians kept right on shooting layups until KHS was so far behind the best it could do was rally for an 81-72 defeat.

Even though Ketcham had logged an earlier win over Kingston, this game was something of a shocker. Among other things the Tigers had the home court and Jay Foust in the lineup—two ingredients that were missing the first time around—and they fully expected to handle the Indians convincingly. It didn't turn out that way.

It wasn't even close. The KHS offense was erratic, which wasn't unusual, but the Kingston defense, normally the Tigers' bread-and-butter, turned stale and rancid.

Coach Mike Rienzo was a little bewildered by the setback. "I don't know why we did it. We work on helping out—on filling the middle all the time, but we just didn't do it. I don't know."

The give-and-go, which is about as fundamental as you can get, worked time and again for the Indians. Tony Larsen continually rolled around Foust for easy buckets, and the Tigers just watched while he dumped in 26 points.

In the first quarter alone Kingston gave Ketcham five layups. A spurt at the end of the period brought KHS back a bit, but Ketcham resumed its ways in the second quarter and pulled away to a 14-point lead at halftime. The fans kept waiting for the Tigers to catch fire. It finally happened in the third quarter, but by then it was too late. The Indians were playing too well to blow an 18-point advantage.

Rienzo thought his team had a chance at it. "I thought that foul on (Jim) Brown killed us," he said. "He shouldn't have been charged with that."

There were just under three minutes remaining when Brown, in a scramble for a loose ball, slammed into an opponent. Brown then drew a technical for giving the ball an emphatic bounce. KHS had trailed by just eight points before the call, but Joe Frei sunk the free throw, and Larsen added another layup right after that to boost Ketcham back out in front by 11.

A minute before that Kingston had pulled to within six as Ron Mapes sunk the first half of a one-and-one. If there was a turning point, though, that was it. Mapes missed the second shot, and when the Indians came downcourt to commit a turnover, Kingston responded by handing the ball right back.

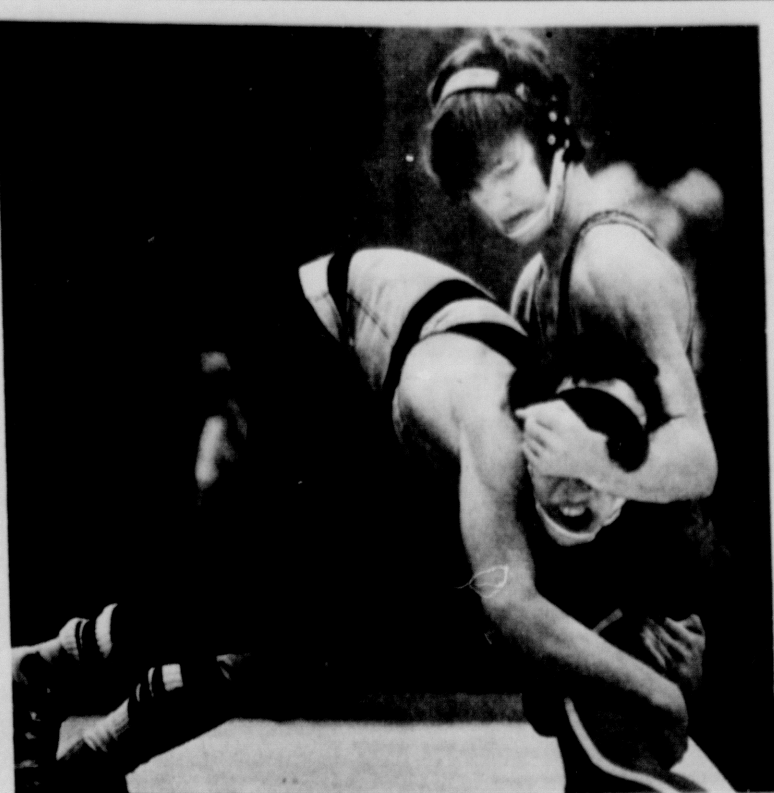

Ketcham played a solid game, boxed out well at both ends, and got a 21-point performance from John Mason.

"That Mason was a surprise," Rienzo said. As for the Tigers, Darrell Mills got 19 and Foust had 16, but neither really had an exceptional game. Mapes did some hustling and came up with 11, and Brown had his corner shot working for ten.

"Mathematically, this just about puts us out of it," said Rienzo as his squad dropped to 4-5 in Division I of the Dutchess County Scholastic League. Ketcham, spoilers all the way, improved to 3-6 in the league. Box, standings on page 18.

SHS Matmen Prepare By Beating Linton

SAUGERTIES—Saugerties High School's varsity wrestling team tuned up for Friday's crucial match with Kingston with a 34-11 victory over Linton of Schenectady Tuesday afternoon in a match that was closer than the final score.

The Sawyers, 7-3 overall and winners of five straight, took eight of the 11 matches and also lost the 91-pound exhibition. Six of those victories were decisions by six or fewer points and had Saugerties coach Hank Smith sweating a little bit. "They could've beaten us," said Smith. "We figured it was going to be another tough match. We lost by one point to them last year up there."

The match was still in doubt entering the final two bouts, but Sawyers Lars Hauck and Rich Ryan settled things decisively with quick pins. Hauck pinned Mike Burdick in 35 seconds, utilizing a half-nelson and crotch hold, while Ryan pinned John Alesky in 1:33. The Sawyers also got a major decision from Ray Ackerman at 132 pounds as he beat Vic Herman, 10-1, and decision wins from Tom Miller, Andy Limeri, Tom Carr, Mike Kerbert, Dan Bogert and Steve Landell.

Saugerties visits Kingston on Friday at Kate Walton Field House with the varsity match at 7 p.m. The summaries:

Nets Deal Williamson

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers, virtually assured of not getting a crack at a high choice in the next college basketball draft, beat the NBA midnight trading deadline by taking John Williamson, the New York Nets' leading scorer.

NBA roundup on page 21

In return, the Pacers gave up their first-round draft pick "and future considerations to be determined at the end of the season," Coach Bobby Leonard announced late Tuesday night.

The deal for Williamson was made 45 minutes before the deadline.

Williamson, a 6-foot-2 guard who was an ABA All-Star as a member of the Nets, averaged 20.8 points this season. However, he has seen only limited action since chipping a bone in his left pinky finger Jan. 5. The former New Mexico State player, in his fourth pro season, has said doctors have recommended surgery for his injury.

"With the current records of the Milwaukee Bucks and the New York Nets, it certainly doesn't look like we would get a very high draft pick this year," said Leonard. "If we can't have Kent Benson or Marques Johnson, nobody else can help us nearly as much as John Williamson can," Leonard added.

The Nets are in last place in the Atlantic Division and have the worst record in the NBA.

Benson, a 6-foot-11 senior, was one of the key players on Indiana's 1976 NCAA championship team. Johnson stars for UCLA. The two were expected to be among the top first-round draft choices.

Williamson is the third starter from last year's ABA champion Nets to be traded this season. Brian Taylor was traded to Kansas City before the season opened and Julius Erving was sold to Philadelphia.

Johnny Bench Wasn't Much of a Catch

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Baseball star Johnny Bench took his best man home with him on his wedding night and they played ping-pong. Bench's estranged wife Vickie is quoted in a copyrighted story in Tuesday's Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bench, the Cincinnati Reds' power-hitting catcher, and Vickie Chesser Bench are currently going through divorce proceedings. They separated less than a year after their Feb. 21, 1975 wedding.

"After the wedding party, he (Johnny) took his best man home with us—and they played ping-pong," Vickie is quoted as saying.

Mrs. Bench, a model who had done nationally televised toothpaste commercials before the marriage, made several other complaints about Bench and their marriage.

Told of her complaints, Bench said, "With regard to her statements, there is no basis in fact and I believe they are motivated by her disappointment when the (divorce) referee did not grant her request of almost $100,000 a year for temporary alimony for a marriage that lasted 11 months."

"That is my statement and I don't want to go into any more details as to her charges since that would only hurt her more," said Bench.

Said Vickie in her complaints:

"Johnny broke my heart and my spirit—he ruined my health and that has kept me from resuming my career. A career that I gladly gave up to marry, for keeps, the man I love. Right until our wedding night, I thought he was the man he seemed to be.

"He certainly has no respect for any woman, and probably not for any man.

"He can lose $10,000 on a bet and appear to be unconcerned. Yet, when I was sick, he told me to delay seeing a doctor until the team physician came to town—his services were free. When I asked if I could hire a maid one day a week, Johnny said no, it would cost too much.

"When we were married, Johnny was already a superstar. I was a nationally known, successful model about to reach the top in that field. I gladly gave all that up to become his wife forever.

"When Johnny was through with me publicly (Bench's public announcement a year ago about the marriage breakup), I was broken in spirit, had lost my confidence, my health and subsequently, my appearance as a model. I had been out of competition for more than a year and time had moved on.

"I did have one offer: 'Hustler' magazine offered me $25,000 to pose in 'Hustler' style. I rejected the idea but Johnny said, 'Why not, it's good money.' That pretty much showed the respect he had for his wife and the dollar.

"I hope this shows that there may be two sides of the story of poor Johnny Bench's marriage problems. Johnny Bench is a great athlete, a mediocre everything else and he is a true tragedy as a person."

Sawyers Pull Out All the Stops

SAUGERTIES — Scrappy, tough, hustling, determined... that's the kind of fight Lourdes put up against homestanding Saugerties High Tuesday night. It's why the Sawyers needed all the same attributes, not to mention a 13-2 streak late in the fourth quarter, to escape with a 83-74 win in a Dutchess County Scholastic League battle.

"Lourdes was twice as good as they were when we played them down there," said Saugerties coach Dick Colavita. "They hassle you all over the court, and if you make a mistake they take advantage of it."

The only clear edge Saugerties had in the contest was off the boards where Chris Swech and Marc Becker each pulled down 13 rebounds to lead the winners to a 52-42 advantage. The score was much closer. Saugerties did manage to punch in front by nine points early in the fourth period, but the Warriors got those points back and slipped in front, 72-70 with 4:30 left to play.

"We used a zone press," said Colavita. "(Tim) Cole and (Jim) Hackett got a couple of baskets, and we had it from there."

Cole finished with 22 points, and Hackett, like Swech, had 18. Steve Schaeffer further balanced the Sawyer attack with 13, and Becker just missed double figures with eight points.

Becker had his chances to score from the foul line, and if he had that would have been some kind of milestone for the Sawyers.

"I don't remember the last time we had five players in double figures," said Colavita.

The Sawyer shooting was off in the first period, however, and Lourdes took a 14-10 lead at the first stop. The winners came back to control the middle part of the contest until Lourdes broke in front briefly at the end.

Eight Warriors scored points with Mike Quinn at the top of the list with 25. The losers were just a shade better from the field hitting at a 44 percent clip.

With Division II-leading Beacon dropping a close one to Spackenkill, Saugerties moved to within two games of the lead with a 4-5 record. The Spartans also have that record while Poughkeepsie stayed one game behind in second place. Box, standings on page 18.

Red Hook, Coleman Girls Are Unbeaten

KINGSTON—Red Hook and Coleman High School's girls basketball teams remained undefeated and Wallkill won a thrilling one-point game from its nearby rival Pine Bush Tuesday night in Ulster County Athletic League action.

Red Hook crushed Rondout, 82-18, to stay atop the American division with a 4-0 record, and Coleman defeated Ellenville, 48-37, to raise its record to 3-0, tops in the National loop. In other games, Onteora ripped New Paltz, 71-28; Wallkill nipped Pine Bush, 31-30; and Fallsburgh defeated Marlboro, 37-34.

The Raider girls found no challenge in Kyserike as they ran up a 26-4 first-quarter bulge and coasted from there. Kelly Mosher led Red Hook with 21 points, Denise Sevigny added 19 Pat Kowalski had 14. Sandy Stash pulled down 12 rebounds and Kendall Martin garnered five assists for the victors. Stacy Countryman's eight points led the young RVC girls and Paula Guillam ulled down nine rebounds.

Coleman's strong zone defense stifled Ellenville in the first quarter when the Stateswomen built up a 16-4 lead and they had little trouble from then on.

"They blew us out in the first quarter," said Ellenville coach Marge Collins. "They were hitting and we weren't. We just weren't penetrating their defense in the first quarter."

Ellenville's Cynthia Thompson was the game's top scorer with 23 points and Cheryl Eiksza added 10. Cathy Turck scored 19 for Coleman and Janet Knott 18.

Joy Couland hit a free throw with just one second remaining to break the 30-30 tie and deliver the victory to Wallkill. She had been fouled by Lyl Muthig on the Wallkill inbounds pass after a timeout, made the first of a one-and-one situation, and missed the second.

"She really made the pressure shot," said Wallkill coach Chris Mihm. "I told my girls not to bother going for the rebound on the free throws. I didn't want any fouls with one second left."

Pine Bush jumped out to a 13-2 lead after the first quarter but was outscored the rest of the way, 29-17. Muthig's 12 points led all scorers and Cindy Birdsall had 10 for Wallkill.

Onteora had little trouble with New Paltz, building a 38-12 halftie lead and outscoring New Paltz, 33-16, in the second half. Joanne Lapo led five Onteora girls into double figures with 13 points and Debby Drahos paced New Paltz with 13.

The Onteora junior varsity also won, 13-10.

Cheryl Prince poured in 10 of her game-high 19 points in the second quarter when Fallsburgh outscored Marlboro, 15-9, to key its victory.

"We tried to deny her the ball using a box and one defense," said Marlboro coach Jerry Wall, "but she crashed the boards and that made the difference." Boxes, standings on page 18.

Gratton's New Mask Didn't Scare Rockies

DENVER (UPI) — The new horror mask of New York Rangers goalie Gilles Gratton didn't scare the inspired Colorado Rockies, who stretched their unbeaten streak to four with a 5-2 victory over the Rangers Tuesday night.

Gratton's new $300 face guard, the seventh he has bought, looked like something out of a horror movie with bare fangs and a painted-on snarl.

But the story of the game was told at the other end of the ice, the Colorado goal where Michel Plasse made 48 saves, a performance that made Rockies' defenseman Bryan Lefley simply say, "Plasse is unreal."

Colorado coach Johnny Wilson, all smiles at Plasse's play, told reporters: "Gentlemen, I want to tell you something. I've seen goaltending in my life, but the guy was unbelievable...unbelievable. The guy was a one-man show.

"I'm gonna find the biggest medal I can find and pin it on him," Wilson said of Plasse.

The Rockies scored three first-period goals, including Dave Hudson's eventual winning shot with 15 seconds left in the period. They were followed by a second period goal by Chuck Arnason and one in the third period by rookie Paul Gardner.

New York managed only two goals—one in the second period by Dave Maloney and another in the third period by Pat Hickey. One New York goal in the last period was disallowed.

It was the first time the Rockies have beaten the Rangers this season. New York won two of their previous meetings and one ended in a tie.

The Rangers outshot Colorado 50-30, with New York star Phil Esposito leading the attack. The left-handed Esposito twice tried to go right-handed, and had eight of the Rangers'

50 shots.

Islanders 6, Sabres 3

The New York Islanders seem to have learned a lesson many boxers know: punish the body often enough and the will to go on suffers.

The Islanders whipped the Buffalo Sabres 6-3 Tuesday night, ending a three-game losing streak, and in doing so affirmed that the way to blunt the speedy Sabres is to take the body...and take the body...and take the body.

"From the second period on we were more physical," said Islanders General Manager Bill Torrey in explaining why New York had won for the seventh time in the two clubs' last nine games, dating back to last season's Stanley Cup quarterfinals. "You've got to play physical against them. If you take the man they'll wear down."

"Taking the body tires them out," agreed New York coach Al Arbour. "It's no secret why we won tonight—hard work. There's no substitute for it."

Torrey and Arbour's club also had to be lucky—the Islanders' first two goals came on flukes. Gerry Hart evened the score at 1-1 on a slow 70-footer that eluded Buffalo goalie Gerry Desjardins early in the first period.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Montreal routed Cleveland 7-3, Boston and St. Louis skated to a 3-3 tie and Colorado defeated the New York Rangers 5-2.

In the World Hockey Association, Quebec edged Indianapolis 5-4, Houston thrashed Calgary 6-1, Birmingham nipped New England 4-3, Winnipeg embarrassed Edmonton 11-1 and San Diego dumped Phoenix 5-1.

Fallsburgh-Liberty Game

Tops UCAL Schedule

KINGSTON—Fallsburgh High visits Liberty in varsity basketball tonight in a game that should decide which team gives Marlboro its biggest challenge for the leadership in Division I of the Ulster County Athletic League.

The full UCAL schedule includes New Paltz at Red Hook, Rondout Valley at Pine Bush, Coleman at Highland, Marlboro at Ellenville and Onteora at Walkkill in addition to the Fallsburgh-Liberty clash.

Marlboro remains the league's only unbeaten club at 8-0 and 9-0 overall. It is closely followed by Liberty at 6-1, Fallsburgh at 7-2 and Highland at 6-2. If Liberty beats Fallsburgh tonight, it would effectively knock it out of the title race with three losses. It's doubtful the Comets could make up that disadvantage in the second half of the season. But if Fallsburgh tops liberty, it would provide a bit more breathing room for the Ducks on top.

Red Hook, meanwhile, hopes to pullaway from the rest of the pack in Division II, which it leads with a 5-2 record, 1½ games ahead of 4-4 Rondout. The Raiders will face a New Paltz club that is winless in its last 27 games, including 25 league contests.

In other area sports, Ellenville visits Deleware Valley in a non-league wrestling match, New Paltz State is at Cortland in basketball, Russell Sage visits the NPS women's basketball team, and Ulster County Community College hosts Essex in wrestling at 8 p.m.

UCAL Roundup

Eventful Day For WHS Matmen

KINGSTON — It was, by and large, an uneventful day in Ulster County Athletic League wrestling, but don't tell that to the Wallkill High Panthers.

While league-leaders Rondout and Red Hook remained unbeaten as expected, and while New Paltz had little trouble in disposing of winless Onteora, Wallkill knocked off Pine Bush, 27-23 to claim its first victory of the season.

Rondout moved to 5-0 with a 43-13 win over Fallsburgh. Red Hook picked up its fourth win, 31-14 over Liberty, and New Paltz downed OCS, 42-19.

The Panther-Bushman battle was a close one, and with just two weights to go the winners were nursing a slim, four point lead. Mark Preuss was in a position to wrap it up with only a decision necessary over Bushman Mark Joseph in the 177-pound clash, and that's exactly what he got. Preuss won, 6-3, and John Bolock's victory over John Lunn in the heavyweight contest just pulled the losers closer.

Rondout cruised easily past the Comets who have yet to taste a triumph, but the stand-out for the losers was again Tony Diers who boosted his personal slate to 4-0 with a decision in 126 over Steve Schultz. Ted Stank and Dave McBride scored falls to lead the Ganders.

Liberty was potentially dangerous, but the Raiders wrestled well enough to stay out of trouble. A highlight was Jim Major's major decision over previously unbeaten Jean-Jacques Heffley in the 112 bout. Major upped his record to 4-0 while Heffley had a seven-match streak ended.

New Paltz's strong upper weights buried OCS with six closing victories that included pins by Ray Wells, Steve Wells, John Schulte and Keith Dommies. The action was a little tighter downstairs where Mike Berger of New Paltz fought to an 8-5 win over Joe Murray in 112 and where Bob DeBellis of OCS pulled out a 2-0 win over Tom O'Connor in 119.

The summaries:

Rd Hook 31, Liberty 14
98-Bill Nolan (L) dec. Art Shad, 5-0.
105-Pete Staats (RH) sup. dec. Mark Kreinheder, 17-3.
112-Jim Major (RH) maj. dec. Jean-Jacques Heffley, 9-1.

KHS Depth Tells

KINGSTON—Rondout Valley High took two of the first three places in the boys ski meet but Kingston's depth enabled the Tigers to win their fourth Ulster County Athletic League ski meet Tuesday afternoon.

Rondout's Pete Jansen was first in 31:58 and Steve Stauble third in 33:19, but Kingston's talent came through when Larry Danner took second in 32:52, Dan Ingalsbe finished fourth in 33:35, Kip McCabe fifth in 33:61, and Tigers took seventh through ninth places.

In the girls race, Debbie Cohen and Rowena Burgess finished one-two to lead Kingston to a score of 211 overall. Rondout had but one finisher and lost the meet by default.

"Our young kids are coming on, and I'm really pleased with (freshmen) John Burgess and Larry Danner," said KHS coach Tony Badalato.

"They're doing a good job. And our good seniors—McCabe, Haggerty, Ingalsbe—are also coming around."

"I think we're getting ready for the Section One Race," said Badalato. "I hope the seniors reach their peak by the sectionals. I would like to see one or two of them go to the states this year."

"The best thing about this team is its attitude," Badalato added. "We haven't been outstanding but our attitude's good."

The Kingston boys and girls are both 4-2 in the UCAL. Rondout's bs are 1-5 and the girls team is 0-6.

UCCC Women Couldn't Pay the Price

HUDSON — Ulster County Community College tried to press its way back into its women's varsity contest with Columbia-Greene here Tuesday, but the price of pressure is fouls, and the Senators couldn't afford to pay it. Helped by a 12-3 edge on the foul line, the Twins topped Ulster, 68-55.

UCCC had a poor first half to start things off. The winners went up, 33-19 at the intermission.

"We pressed the whole second half," related UCCC coach Pat McLean. "We got to within eight points with just over three minutes to go, but then Karen Krajick fouled out, and we had to let up."

Cat Show Feb. 12-13 At NP Middle School

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz Middle School Gym will be the site for a cat show on Feb. 12 and 13, proceeds from which will go to Cornell University's Cystitis Research Fund.

The first day of the show will be devoted to shorthairs — Abyssinians, American Shorthairs, Burmese, Colorpoints, Exotics, Korats, Manx, Rex, Russian Blues, and Siamese. Longhairs — Angoras, Birmanians, Himalayans and Persians — will be judged the second day.

The cats are not required to perform. Each cat is judged four times by four different judges, strictly on its confirmation to the standard for its breed. Judging begins at 10 a.m. and continues throughout the day.

Morerod Closing In On World Cup Title

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Lise-Marie Morerod of Switzerland moved nearer to clinching the World Cup crown by winning the women's giant slalom today, one day after she had dropped out of the preceding World Cup slalom event.

Morerod, the 20-year-old Swiss girl, was first on the 1,300 yard track with a vertical drop of 340 meters in 1 minute 12.04 seconds, ahead of Monika Kaserer of Austria in 1:12.13 and Fabienne Serrat of France in 1:12.91.

Morerod was easily the most elegant skier through the 48 gates, lagged out by Klaus Mayr of West Germany.

"I went all out to abolish the bad impression I made in the slalom yesterday," Morerod said. "It is a nice feeling to win."

Morerod now has scored three World Cup wins in the giant slalom and another three in the slalom this season for a comfortable overall lead with 238 points, ahead of Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria with 191 points.

The race was held in better weather conditions than the slalom on Tuesday when Morerod dropped out in the first heat, missing a gate in heavy fog.

This time, the 65 competitors took off in beautiful sunshine and only a small part shortly before the finish was occasionally covered by light fog.

"It was much better today," Morerod said. "I had no difficulties to look several gates ahead which is necessary if you want to win."

Runner-up Kaserer, who also was second in the slalom on Tuesday, said "I went as fast as I could but there seems to be no way of defeating Morerod if she has a good run."

The race was the last for the women's World Cup circuit in Europe before they proceed overseas. The next race will be held Feb. 26 in Forno, Japan. The circuit then moves to the United States before concluding the season in Sierra Nevada, Spain, on March 26-27.

Kaye Keeps Pace With Naccarato

SAUGERTIES — Naccarato Insurance and Kaye Sports continue to wage a two-team race in the second half standings of the Saugerties Athletic Association Premier Basketball League, but unlike the first half, this time it's Kaye doing the chasing.

With Rich Koegel scoring 26 points, grabbing 23 rebounds and delivering five assists, Kaye edged Boo's Tavern, 76-74, to remain a game back of Naccarato, which received a forfeit victory over Gokey Brothers Insurance.

Kaye has already won the first half pennant and must repeat in the second half to avoid a championship playoff against Naccarato.

Tom Whitaker scored 20 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and handed off for five assists to back Koegel's efforts for Kaye. Joey Hellenschmidt dunked 20 points and lured in 15 rebounds.

Boo's Tavern got 22 points from Scott Wilson and 16 from Kerin Campbell. Frank Babic had 17 rebounds and Jay Harris passed off for 12 assists.

SAGUERTIES — The Fire Department has picked up some breathing room in its chase for the Saugerties Athletic Association Sawyer Basketball League pennant.

Leading KK by a half game, the Firemen went into overtime to squeak out an 82-77 victory over the last place Village Cobbler. That, combined with Keeley's 81-80 defeat at the hands of Mark IV Printing ups the Firemen's lead to a game and a half.

The Smokeaters blew a 21 point margin thus sending their game into overtime. But the winners outscored Cobbler 11-6 in the extra period to prevail.

Vols Invincible In Conference

By UPI

The University of Tennessee had its weaknesses exposed to a national television audience Sunday, but the 10th-ranked Volunteers remained invincible in the Southeastern Conference Tuesday night.

UCLA exploited the Vols' lack of bench strength in Sunday's game, but Tennessee's starters have been able to handle the job by themselves in the SEC and Tuesday night was no exception.

Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King combined for 58 points in leading the Vols to a 106-82 romp over Georgia as Tennessee improved its conference record to 9-0.

Grunfeld finished with 32 points and King 26. Freshman center Reggie Johnson added 14 points and senior guard Mike Jackson 12 as the Vols' starting five turned over a 30-point lead to the subs with eight minutes left in the game.

The Vols now are 15-3 overall.

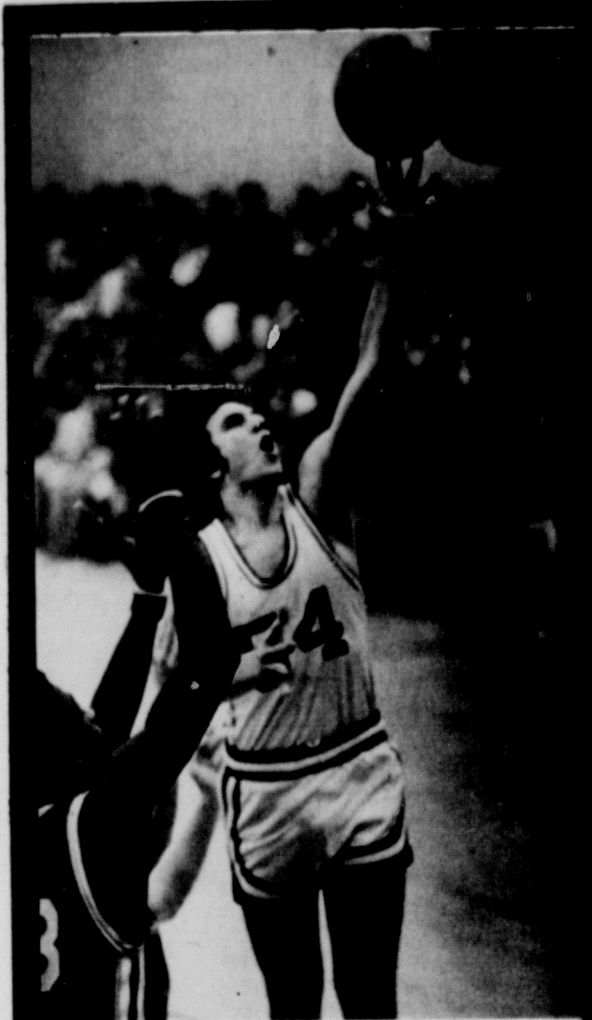

Gregg Ewaldsen led Georgia with 16 points and David Reavis had 15.

Robert Smith, a rare passing artist in third-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas' run-and-gun offense, sank a pair of free throws with five seconds left to give the Rebels a 107-106 victory over Bradley.

The Rebels, now 17-1, tied the game, 105-105, before Smith scored the winning free throws. The 5-11 senior led the team in assists last season.

Eddie Owens scored 31 points and Glen Gondrezick added 14 to enable the Rebels to overcome Roger Phegley's 46-point performance for Bradley. Bobby Humbles added 26 for Bradley, which is 7-12.

No. 17 Providence downed St. Bonaventure, 82-75, and Colon Abraham's pair of free throws with nine seconds left gave 18th-ranked Clemson a 60-59 victory over North Carolina State.

Lourdes Defeats Saugerties Girls

POUGHKEEPSIE— DCSL GIRLS CAGE
Fourth quarter foul troubles proved to be the undoing of the Saugerties High girls basketball team Tuesday as it dropped a 50-44 Dutchess County Scholastic League game to Lourdes.

SHS starters Shelly Pfeil and Peggy Hain, who combined for 26 points, fouled out in the final quarter and Lourdes took advantage by outscoring the Sawyer girls, 20-14. The game was tied, 30-30, after three quarters.

Lourdes center Trish Anderson scored seven of her 10 points, second-highest on the team, in the fourth quarter before fouling out to lead the Lourdes rally. High scorer Laura Corning scored four of her 12 points in the final stanza.

Saugerties was led by Hain (15), Pfeil (11) and Mickey Stilphen, who added 12 points. Although Saugerties had four more successful free throws than did Lourdes, they scored five fewer field goals.

"When we lose Shelly and Peggy, it makes a big difference," said SHS coach Kathy Lund. "It was a good game for both teams. They're more our type of team—small and quick."

Saugerties has lost two straight and is 4-5. The Sawyer girls visit Beacon on Friday night.

Fire Hits Tigers' Stadium

DETROIT (UPI) — Arson investigators probed fire-blackened Tiger Stadium today in an effort to determine the cause of a blaze that gutted the press box area and damaged a section of the third-level deck Tuesday night.

Some 60 firemen, hampered by high winds and inaccessibility to the aging stadium, brought the blaze under control almost two hours after it was first reported.

The three-alarm fire was confined to the southwest section of the stadium, but firefighters for a while feared it would spread to other areas of the structure, located just west of downtown Detroit.

Jim Campbell, general manager of the Detroit Tigers who own the stadium, said the press box, built in 1938, was "probably wiped out." He said he did not immediately know the dollar value of the damage.

Noting that the Tigers open their baseball season April 7, Campbell said: "Don't worry—we'll play ball." The general manager learned of the fire on the radio and immediately drove from his home to the stadium.

The stadium, which is not used in the winter, was blanketed with snow, making it difficult for firefighters to get heavy equipment onto the playing field. Firemen used hoists to get men over the top of the stadium and many of their ladders were stretched to their full capacity to reach the upper deck.

There were no injuries. Fire officials said the blaze apparently started at the first base side of the press box area and worked its way over to the third-base side before it was contained. Flames could be seen for miles around.

Witnesses said the fire was so intense in some places that the flames were blue. Fire officials said it took firefighters 10-to-15 minutes to get into the stadium after they arrived at the scene.

Police blocked all streets leading into the congested area.

The Tigers recently began the first phase of a major renovation of the stadium by installing new lights, some of which were damaged by the heat.

Tiger Stadium is one of the oldest of its kind in the nation still used by a professional sports team. It was also home to the Detroit Lions until the National Football League club moved to the new Pontiac Silverdome in 1975.

The fire was reported at 6:33 p.m. by a man who said he saw fire and smoke pouring from the elevator shaft that leads to the press box area. Firemen pronounced the blaze contained at 8:21 and a dispatcher said all firefighting personnel were withdrawn from the scene by midnight.

One battalion commander said the task of fighting the fire might have been much worse under last week's frigid weather conditions.

When the Game Began, Frazier Was a Spectator

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not in eight years, at home or away, had Knick fans seen such a sight.

When Tuesday night's game against Golden State got underway, a healthy Walt Frazier was sitting on the bench. According to club officials, it was the first time Frazier has found himself odd man out, except for injury or illness, since he won a regular job in 1968.

It may be mere coincidence, but the move by Coach Red Holzman came only a few days after Frazier voluntarily gave up his team captaincy, claiming he didn't want the added pressure.

Whatever the reasoning,

Holzman's strategy worked, as did his decision to shuttle his guards continually. Frazier, one of the more popular players ever to compete for the Knicks, came off the bench with 7:07 left in the opening period and went on to score 23 points in 40 minutes as New York edged the Warriors, 108-107, in overtime.

It was only the fourth victory for the Knicks in their last 14 outings, and Holzman said he started Butch Beard alongside Earl Monroe in the New York backcourt to take the pressure off Frazier.

"Frazier was getting all the heat and it was unjustified," Holzman explained. "I just wanted to take some pressure off him. Clyde had done some things wrong, but so do I, and he shouldn't get blamed for it."

"People in the media are saying Clyde is the guy mainly responsible (for the losing). I don't agree with that although it's easy for people to say that—to single out one player. It's not one player, it's the team and the coach."

Holzman said he told Frazier of his decision before the game. "Mentally, he reacted okay," the coach said. "He's a pro."

Frazier, who no longer talks much to the media, said coming off the bench helped his stamina. He also agreed with Holzman's decision to sub freely among the backcourt, saying, "It was okay, it gave us a blow. Red can tell by the flow of the game if we need one."

Earl Monroe's baseline jumper with three seconds to play provided the Knicks with the victory, although Golden State had one more chance on a jumper by Rick Barry at the buzzer. But the ball hit the rim, bounced high, and fell out.

"I thought I made it," a frustrated Barry said later. "I got a great look at the basket and I was on line. If I had put a little more force on it, it would have gone in."

In other NBA games Tuesday night, the Indiana Pacers edged the Philadelphia 76ers, Bulls, 97-86; the Detroit 110-109, the San Antonio Pistons beat the Atlanta Spurs defeated the Cleveland Hawks, 95-92, and the Los Angeles Lakers crushed the City Kings topped the Chicago Milwaukee Bucks, 136-115.

Benedictine's Coronary Unit Marking Its 10th Year

By MARGERY MOSSMAN
Freeman staff

The party will be small and brief, but the occasion has a great meaning for the many specially trained nurses...And at the same time an equally, special meaning for the nearly 3,000 heart attack and stroke victims who have been patients at the Coronary Care Unit at Benedictine Hospital.

KINGSTON—The Coronary Care Unit at Benedictine Hospital celebrates its tenth anniversary this week. The party will be small and brief, but, thanks to the work of Dr. John Olivet, Head of the Department of Cardiology, the occasion has great meaning for the many specially trained nurses who have done their utmost over the past 10 years to save the lives of nearly 3,000 heart attack and stroke victims.

Dr. Olivet, who was the hospital's medical director until his retirement last October, admits modestly to being entirely responsible for the opening and development of Benedictine's Coronary Care Unit (CCU). He first learned of the existence of CCUs through physicians' conferences. The first units in this country were opened in Philadelphia and Kansas City in 1962. It was said at this time that the mortality rate of heart patients had declined 50 per cent in hospitals with CCUs.

By February of 1967, Dr. Olivet was admitting his own patients to Benedictine's three-bed unit in Room 219. The quarters were small, but the unit was the first to be opened between New York City and Albany, and it was, the doctor recalls, "one of the first 75 units in the country."

According to Dr. Olivet, the first unit in Kingston

Before the unit opened, Dr. Olivet trained 13 "cream of the crop" nurses recommended to him by the department of nursing services. Above all, these nurses were taught to understand and read electrocardiography, to know when emergencies arise, and to act within seconds in response to an emergency.

Dr. Olivet has always held that the credit for an efficient CCU must go to the highly trained nurses with little to do. In response to this problem, the doctor developed a program that would utilize the nurses' talents to the fullest extent.

His idea was to incorporate the care of stroke patients with the CCU. (Although the brain is affected by a stroke, ensuing complications occasionally cause sudden fatal cardiac problems. A patient being monitored in the CCU can be saved by immediate treatment.) A grant was given to Dr. Olivet in 1969, in conjunction with the Albany Regional Medical Center, to set up a pilot program training nurses to deal with both heart and stroke patients in the coronary care unit. The results of the doctor's successful program were published in the N.Y.S. Journal of Medicine, and, today, nurses and patients continue to benefit from the program's innovations.

Many other changes have taken place since the introduction of Benedictine's original one-room CCU. In 1969 the unit was enlarged and moved to its present location. All the monitoring is now read at one desk, and readings are constantly being done even for patients outside of the central four-bed unit.

A wireless antenna in the ceiling of one wing of the hospital permits constant monitoring of patients no longer confined to bed.

Patients can even be monitored while at home. A tiny cassette is held in a patient's pocket or attached to his belt for a full 24 hours. The cassette records the heart's actions, while the patient keeps a written log of all his activities. If at any time during the day the patient feels unusually weak or ill, the cassette will have picked up any irregularities of the heartbeat. After one day, the cassette is brought to the hospital to be "read" on the CCU monitor screen. The doctor then determines what, if any, activities are adversely affecting the patient.

Another special addition to Benedictine's CCU is the Pacemaker Call-In Clinic. With special equipment, doctors can "listen" to a patient's pacemaker over the phone and decide whether a personal check-up is necessary. The advantage to this system is that patients need not leave their homes. The procedure is as simple as possible.

With all these expanded services, the Benedictine CCU looks forward to another move. A larger, more sophisticated unit is being planned for the hospital's new wing, which is presently under construction. According to Dr. Olivet, the concept of the CCU—"to save patients from unexpected deaths that frequently occur"—remains unchanged.

Many changes have taken place since the introduction of the hospital's original one-room CCU. The facility was enlarged in 1969 and moved to its present location where all monitoring is read at one desk. Now, readings can be done even for patients outside of the central four-bed unit.

was set up "very cheaply." The hospital's old ECG machine was connected to three new monitors. When necessary, the monitors touched off an alarm which caused the ECG machine to "run off a trace" showing what was happening to the patient's heart.

the nurses. They are the professionals monitoring the unit 24-hours a day, and they are the experts when a sudden problem arises. They decide whether the situation can wait for the doctor's arrival or whether they should act immediately themselves, which they are trained to do.

Because the nurses' jobs in the unit are so vital, they are retrained yearly. Some nurses take further instruction outside of the hospital and return to conduct in-service training sessions.

When Dr. Olivet opened the tiny three-bed facility, he soon discovered that the number of patients under his care fluctuated—sometimes overflowing the unit, and sometimes leav-

Free Oral Exams Slated Saturday

KINGSTON—Free oral examinations will be offered to persons 30 years of age or older at the Community Room in Britt's, in the Kingston Plaza, from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 5.

The announcement was made by Dr. Bruce Sorrin, chairman of the Dental Health Committee of the Ulster-Greene Dental Study Club, and Dr. James R. Clarkin, president of the American Cancer Society's Ulster County Unit, co-sponsors of the oral cancer screening.

Volunteer dentists from the area will conduct a visual survey of the mouth in the temporary dental facility. Said Dr. Sorrin, "Cancer of the mouth is one of the easiest forms of cancer to detect at an early stage. Patients found with suspected lesions will be referred to their own dentists or physicians for a more complete examination and evaluation."

Cancers of the mouth afflict some 24,000 Americans annually, resulting in about 8,000 deaths a year. The American Cancer Society emphasizes the value of early diagnosis and treatment through public education and professional programs for physicians and dentists, and support of community-wide screening projects such as the one being conducted this week in Kingston.

Clergyman Has Right To Balk at Ceremony

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 29 and was looking forward so happily to her fourth marriage. But she's terribly upset because our rabbi has suggested that she go to another rabbi for this ceremony.

Actually, this rabbi (who confirmed her) performed only two of her marriages. She married a Catholic last time for whom she turned Catholic, but in less than a year their marriage was annulled, and she returned to the Jewish faith. So now she is as Jewish as she was before she became a Catholic.

Now, our rabbi doesn't want to marry her. Does he have the right to turn her away?

What would you do in our place? There are other rabbis handy, but our daughter felt so close to this one. (He is not an orthodox rabbi, he's reformed.)—ANONYMOUS, PLEASE.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: A clergyman has the right to refuse to perform a marriage ceremony for reasons of his own. Inasmuch as there are other rabbis handy, ask one.

DEAR ABBY: Joel and I had gone steady for two years and things were going great until six months ago. Then he suggested that we both start dating others.

I really didn't want to date anyone else, so I asked Joel what went wrong in our relationship, and he told me:

I had cut my hair above my ears without asking him first, and it seems that short hair on girls turns him off.

Then because Joel complained about my cigarette breath, I quit smoking and gained 20 pounds in five months. Well, it seems fat girls turn him off.

He told me that after I had my hair grown out and lost the weight I gained, I should give him a call.

My question: Do you think I should let my hair grow and try to lose weight just to please Joel? Or should I tell him that I am not going to make myself over for him?—I WANT TO BE ME.

DEAR WANT: Only you can make that decision. Now that you know what it will take to get Joel back, it's up to you to decide whether he's worth the effort. Is he?

DEAR ABBY: My mother (a widow) is coming to town for a family wedding. She lives a great distance from here. Mom has always stayed with me, and she wants to this time, but there are complications.

She has a live-in boyfriend, and she won't come without him. Furthermore, she wants me to put them up together in my home.

Abby, I have children at home, and I don't want them to say, "If Nana can do it, why can't we?"

I explained this to my mother and she said, "Well, tell the kids we're married!"

Abby, I don't want to lie to my children, and although I don't approve of my mother's lifestyle, I still love her. My husband disapproves, too. What should I do?—STUMPED OUT WEST.

DEAR STUMPED: Tell your Mom you refuse to lie, but you'll be glad to make hotel or motel reservations for her friend. And don't apologize for your decision. House guests should expect to conform to the house rules.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

FOOD MEMOS

The Dry Bean Variety

By Louise K. Breitung
Cooperative Extension Agent

We all know beans - baked beans, boiled beans, beans in soup, and beans in bags for children's play. Beans have a full past as a source of food and fun. It is even said the "mess of pottage" for which Esau sold his birthright was a dry bean dish. Centuries ago Roman children drew lots with beans to see who would become king. From their game grew the traditional idea of the cake of kings baked with a bean hidden in the batter and served at the Feast of Twelfth Night, a celebration still carried on today. When the cake is cut, feaster who gets the piece with the bean in it is king for the rest of the day in England, and for the whole year in France.

The American Indians grew beans and gave them special tribal names. For example, beans were called sahe or sahu by the Indians of the St. Lawrence River, or garsessa by the Hurons, and tuppunguamash by the northern Algonquins. Each tribe had grown beans "always," meaning as far back as their folk tales could explain. When the first voyagers arrived, they found the Indians eating a mixture of beans and corn, the forerunner of our present-day succotash.

About 1500 the White man took with him on his voyages some of the dry beans he found growing in America and declared them seaworthy. It is small wonder today we speak of "navy" beans!

There are six varieties of Dry Beans commonly found in our markets. Pea (Navy) beans are the familiar white, oval ones. Different kinds vary somewhat in size. Great Northern beans are larger than the pea beans, are white and somewhat flat in shape. Harrow beans are white. They are sweet and mealy. Lima (Butterbeans) look like lima beans. Baby Limas are smaller but similar in shape. Kidney—there are two types of red kidneys—the "dark-red" and the more common "light-red." Some kidney beans are white. Yelloweye are white, medium-size beans with brown markings.

COST COMPARISON—Either canned baked beans or beans baked at home "starting from scratch" are a low-cost food. You will get about nine servings from a pound of dry pea beans and about 2 1/2 servings from a pound-can of baked beans. A 16 oz. can of baked beans and pork cost 29 cents. A pound of pea (navy) beans will cost 39 cents and four ounces of salt pork will cost 40 cents. At these prices, one serving of canned beans will cost 12 1/2 cents compared to one serving of home prepared costing nine cents per serving. The product you prepare at home may cost more or less than the canned beans, depending upon the kinds and amounts of seasonings and the fuel you use.

HOME CARE—Store the dry beans in a bag or can with a tight cover that shuts out dust, insects and mice. Choose a cool, dry, dark storage place. Dry beans will keep for a couple of years, if you store them properly. When stored for a longer period, the beans become stale and water penetrates them slowly, lengthening the cooking time.

Put unopened cans of beans in a cool, dry place. A storage temperature of 70 degrees F. or below helps maintain the flavor and food value of canned food. Choose a space that is well-ventilated and warm enough to prevent freezing. Once you open a can of beans, store any leftover in the refrigerator for use within a few days.

FOOD VALUE—Dry beans are among the least expensive sources of calories, protein, iron and two of the B vitamins, thiamine and riboflavin, according to a study made at the New York State College of Human Ecology.

Beans are good pinch-hitters for meat, especially if they are combined in the same meal with some protein-rich food from an animal source, such as milk, eggs, or cheese. The protein from these other foods help to make the protein from beans more useful to the body.

USE—Cooking dried beans these days is not the slow process of all-night soaking and all-day baking used by our grandmothers. Sometimes it may be convenient for you to let the beans soak over night. Other times you may prefer this short-soak method developed by the United States Department of Agriculture. (1) Sort and wash the beans. (2) Boil the beans in 2 1/2 to 3 times as much water as beans for 2 minutes; remove them from the heat and let them soak for one hour.

To cook the beans, bring the water used for soaking to a boil, add 1 teaspoon salt for each cup of dry beans. If you favor the beans with a salty meat, use less salt. Reserve such seasonings as tomatoes, catsup or vinegar until the beans are almost cooked, since the acids in these foods delay softening. Add water when necessary to keep the beans from sticking or scorching. The beans will become soft in a half hour to two hours, depending upon the variety. Beans more than a year old may take longer to cook than recently harvested ones.

In America, different regions boast bean specialties. In the South, we have the "Hopping John", a combination of boiled beans and rice; in the Southwest, chili con carne; and in the North, baked beans with their traditional blend of molasses, mustard, and cured pork. You might like to try the following recipe for Barbecued Lima Beans taken from the USDA publication, "Home and Garden Bulletin No. 40," entitled "Freezing Combination Main Dishes."

BARBECUED LIMA BEANS
24 servings, about 1/2 cup each
2 lbs. or 4 1/2 cups dry lima beans, small
3 qts. boiling water
8 oz. salt pork, finely diced
1/4 cup instant minced onion
3 tbsps. prepared mustard
2 tpsns. Worcestershire sauce.
2 tpsns. chili powder
1/2 tspn. garlic powder
2 cans, 10 1/2 oz. each, tomato soup, condensed
1/4 cup vinegar
1 1/2 tbsps. brown sugar
2 cups bean cooking liquid

Line 8 by 8-inch baking pans with heat-resistant freezer wrap. Allow enough extra wrap to fold over top. Use one pan for each six servings or 1/4 of the recipe. Do not line pans for recipe to be served without freezing.

Add beans to boiling water; return to boiling. Boil beans 2 minutes; then soak beans 1 hour (or overnight, if preferred). Cook beans slowly until tender, about 45 minutes. Drain; save 2 cups cooking liquid.

Brown salt pork with onion. Mix remaining ingredients with salt pork mixture. Add beans; stir gently. Pour one-fourth of mixture into each baking pan.

TO SERVE WITHOUT FREEZING—Preheat oven to 400 degrees F (hot). Bake 30 minutes.

TO FREEZE—Cool for 30 minutes at room temperature. Fold and seal wrapping. Label and freeze immediately.

TO HEAT FROZEN FOOD—Preheat oven to 400 degrees F (hot). Remove freezer wrap. Place food in baking pan. Bake 1 hour or until center is hot.

CALORIES PER SERVING—About 230.

Parents Need Training

MOUNT MARION— "Parents are blamed, not trained," is the theme of a presentation on Parent Effectiveness Training to be held at the Plattekill Reformed Church in Mount Marion on Feb. 8.

PET was developed by Dr. Thomas Gordon in 1962 and has since spread throughout the nation. More than a quarter of a million parents have been taught the skills needed for the world's hardest job...raising children. "Everyone points the finger of blame at parents for the troubles of youth," says Dr. Gordon. "Yet how much effort is made to assist parents to become more effective in rearing children?"

PET is an approach to more effective, responsible parenthood. It is a "no-lose" system for resolving conflicts between parents and their youngsters which completely and mercifully replaces the two traditional child-raising alternatives of the off-spring always losing (the strictness school) or the parent always losing (the permissive school.) Parent Effectiveness Training doesn't think either side should lose, ever, and it teaches the skills needed to prevent it from happening.

The Feb. 8 talk will be given at 7:30 p.m. by George Sues, a certified instructor of Dr. Gordon's PET method. Sues is assistant director of the Pine Grove School and Camp Inc. He has a master's degree in special education and has been employed by the Pine Grove School for six years since graduating from SUNY at New Paltz in 1970. He teaches a full length PET seminar at Ulster County Community College.

The public is invited to attend this event which is sponsored by the Reformed Church Women.

Hurley Vols Report

HURLEY—The annual banquet of the Hurley Volunteer Fire Company No. 1 was held recently at the Twin Lakes Mountain House. Line and company officers for 1977 were introduced to the banquet attendees by Walter Portz, banquet chairman.

Company officers for the year are: the Rev. Charles Stickley, president; Harold Bibb, vice president; Joan Millham, secretary; William Tweeddale, treasurer.

Hurley Fire Company line officers for 1977 are: Earle McLane, chief; William Manley, assistant chief; David Millham, assistant chief; Richard Ruth, captain. Lieutenants for the year are: Matt Albrecht, Ben Antanaitis, Timothy Donovan, Jeffrey Breton.

The Hurley Fire Company Ladies Auxiliary officers are: Margaret Antanaitis, president; Bernice Portz, vice president; Doris Alden, secretary.

Following the introduction of officers, Portz described the year's activities. Emergency calls totalled 58 in 1976, up by seven from the previous year. Although there were no house fires reported in Hurley in 1976, the fire calls represented a wide variety of situations ranging from barn, car, chimney and brush fires to storm and flood emergencies, automobile accidents and rescues.

In addition to responding to calls for assistance, Portz reported that numerous other fire related activities were sponsored by the Hurley Fire Company including: fire drills and inspections at the local schools, tours of the firehouse, October Fire Prevention Week demonstrations and fire education sessions such as the Hurley Fire Company Babysitter Training Course.

In 1976, Hurley firemen volunteered more than 200 man hours participating in regular training activities, and more than 400 man hours for special training in CPR, hazardous material handling, automobile extraction, arson investigation, aircraft fires, and power line emergencies.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY

NOTICE OF PROPOSED INTRODUCTION OF TELEPHONE RATE SCHEDULES FOR DIAL PBX SERIES 600 TYPES 10, 12 and 14 SERVICE

Notice is hereby given that the Telephone Company has submitted to the Public Service Commission, with a proposed effective date of February 20, 1977, tariff amendments providing for the introduction of Dial PBX Series 600 Types 10, 12 and 14 Service.

DESCRIPTION OF SERVICE

The Dial PBX Series 600 Types 10, 12 and 14 Service is provided by the TCS-2® PBX. The TCS-2® PBX is an electronic system using stored program control, a space division switching network and switched loop consoles. The system has a capacity of approximately 6,000 lines and 800 trunks depending on the subscriber's traffic requirements. The inherent flexibility of the system provides for comprehensive features to meet the needs of particular businesses and industries.

RATE STRUCTURE

The service is offered under 3 rate plans designated Types 10, 12 and 14. Under Types 10 and 12 Service, the monthly rates for the service consist of two parts, "A" and "B". The subscriber has the option of selecting "A" rate payment periods of 60, 84 or 120 months. The selected "A" rates are guaranteed against Company-initiated change. The "B" rate is designated as a subject to change, from the date of installation. The service is designated Type 10 when the customer elects to pay an installation charge, and Type 12 when the customer pays no installation charge. The monthly rates for Type 10 service are higher than the monthly rates for Type 12 Service. As an option to paying the "A" portion of the charge over the selected payment period, the subscriber may elect to make a one-time payment.

Type 14 service is offered on the basis of standard monthly rates and installation charges, which are subject to change. The minimum charge for the common equipment is the monthly rate for twelve months plus the installation charge and for all other equipment the rate for one month plus the installation charge.

RATES AND CHARGES

Rates and charges are set forth in tariffs which are available for inspection at any office of the Telephone Company where business is transacted in person. The location of these offices can be found in the first pages of telephone directories. Tariffs are also available at the offices of the Public Service Commission. A list of the rates and charges will also be furnished to any person who requests it by writing to the following address:

MACK'S FACTS FOR YOUR GOOD HEALTH
"STEP UP" TO FOOT HEALTH
Corns and calluses... are caused by friction and pressure. They do not have roots, and may be due to a bone deformity.
Warts... are often mistaken for calluses. A wart is a skin growth which has a blood and nerve supply of its own. Warts are usually painful and tend to spread if left untreated.
Bunions... are misaligned big toe joints which become swollen and tender. The basic cause is weakness of the structure of the foot, but heredity and poor fitting shoes may also be influencing factors.
Athlete's foot... is a skin disease caused by a fungus. The fungus most commonly attacks the feet where conditions of warmth and moisture lower skin resistance.
Ingrown nails... are generally due to improper trimming.
Seek professional advice whenever any of these conditions occur.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

ATHLETE: (Q.) Garry is really good in basketball. So he tried out for the team and made it. He has practice Monday through Friday, and I never see him anymore.

I used to see him a lot. We went skating to concerts, etc. Now we don't go anywhere. While he's at practice, I sit at home. We talked this over and he said he's thinking about quitting the team, but I know he won't, because he loves basketball too much.

Do you think he cares more about basketball than me? —Pushed Aside in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Any boy who participates actively in school athletics has to give up a lot of his free time. And he has to realize that she will not be able to spend a lot of time with him.

Basketball seems to be good for Garry. If you're content with less of his time now and look forward to the end of the season, which will be soon.

While he's practicing, you do not have to remain idle. You can keep busy with studies and other activities. This will help to make the time go faster.

AGE RULES: (Q.) I'm 12, and my mother says I am too young to go to parties. These parties usually last from 7 to 11 and are well chaperoned. I also says that I can't date until I'm 16. I can't even go dancing for 15 minutes with a guy. Please help me.

(A.) I agree with your mother that at your age, you should not go riding with boys.

But chaperoned parties are an ideal answer for 13-year-olds. They shouldn't last until 11, though, except on Friday or Saturday nights.

Some sensible parents let their daughters date at 14, some at 15, some at 16. I suggest you and your parents not decide the exact age now, but watch and see how you do as you go along. You may be mature enough for dating before your 16th birthday.

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas, 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

BRIDGE PLAYERS MUST BE SELFISH

by Alfred Sheinwold

The trouble with most of us is that we're too unselfish. Now East remembers his partner. East takes the first trump and returns a spade for West to ruff. West can then return a club for East to ruff. This gives the defenders four tricks instead of only three.

The point is that West's ruffing trick is also an entry—the only entry to the West hand. East can make effective use of that entry only if he first clears the singleton club out of his hand.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one spade, and the next player bids three diamonds (weak jump, overcall). You hold:
♠ QJ74 ♡ KQ8 ♢ 6 ♣ 108743
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four spades. You would bid three spades with three low hearts, just to show the strong trumps and the singleton. The heart strength is worth a higher bid. In this situation, a raise to three is grudging; you must jump to show real strength.

A POCKET GUIDE TO BRIDGE written by Alfred Sheinwold is available. Get your copy by sending $1.35 (including postage & handling) to: Sheinwold On Bridge, (name of your newspaper), P.O. Box 854, Port Washington, N.Y. 11050.

East took the ace of spades and returned a spade for his partner to ruff. A fine beginning—two tricks already in the bag, and none for South. West's return didn't matter. South could win a club or a diamond and lead trumps. East takes the ace of trumps, but West is out of trumps and the defenders are out of trumps. South draws another trump and claims the rest.

East was too considerate of his partner when he returned a spade at the second trick. This play gave West a ruff, but East should think of a ruff for himself.

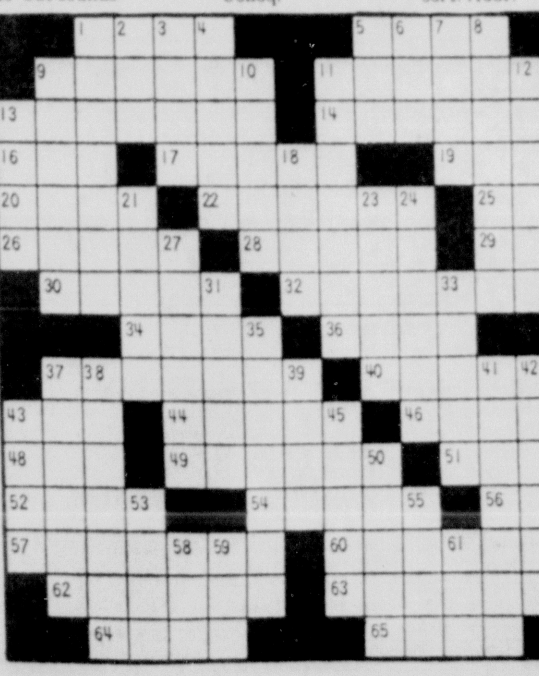

SINGLETON
At the second trick East must return his singleton club. South wins and returns a

Marlboro Hike Recommended

MARLBORO — A Public Employment Relations Board fact finder has recommended a six per cent raise for teachers in the Marlboro Central School District.

The six per cent raise recommended by Dr. Joel Douglas of Mahopac also includes annual step increments paid teachers for service.

Negotiations between the school district and the Marlboro Teachers Association have been going on for eight months. Teachers have been working without a contract since the old two-year pact expired June 30, 1976. Douglas also recommended a one-year agreement, adding that "Although it is urged that the parties negotiate a multi-year contract, neither party has indicated a willingness to do so."

Other agreements recommended by Douglas include a six per cent increase in teacher co-curricular schedules and no changes whatsoever in fringe or credit areas.

Teachers and school district officials originally submitted a list of 14 items for negotiation, including grievance definition, assignment of teachers, posting of vacancies, transfers, sick leave, unapproved absences, school calendar, the length of school days, just cause and fair dismissal, and continued employment.

I cannot and will not deal with a host of items, some of which the parties themselves did not talk over at the negotiating table," Douglas said.

"Thus, several of the items submitted will be remanded back to the parties for their reflection and continued negotiation."

Douglas recommended that no changes be made in the following areas: teacher assignments; posting of vacancies; transfers; sick leave and unapproved absences; length of school day, just cause and continued employment.
